QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Miscellaneous.

MARE COUGHS.

My four-year-old mare has had a cough for some little time. I have been giving her oil of tar each night for a week, but it does no good. What should I give her to cure the cough? I'm afraid it will end in heaves if I don't get it cured.

SUBSCRIBER.

Ans.—Take 3 ozs. pulverized gum opium, 1 oz. powdered digitalis, 4 drams arsenic acid, 4 ozs. powdered liquorice root. Mix and make into 24 powders. Give a powder every night in damp food. Repeat the prescription if necessary.

SMALL-SEEDED FALSE FLAX.

Please let me know the name of enclosed weed. Is it dangerous? Also other information will be thankfully received.

M. M.

Ans.—The sample sent appears to be that of small-seeded false flax, resembling common false flax, but is more slender and with smaller pods. The pest does not long give serious trouble where a short rotation of crops is practiced, and where thorough cultivation and seeding to grasses is done with spring grain instead of fall wheat. The seeds often occur in alsike clover and timothy seeds. The first cutting of red clover containing the weed should be taken only. The first crop of alsike should not be taken for seeds, unless the weeds have been hand-pulled and destroyed.

MANGE IN CATTLE.

Please give a cure for mange in cattle. We have a valuable young bull in good condition and thrifty, which has symptoms of mange as was described in your paper some time ago. How should he be treated to cure him? Is it contagious?

W. D. B.

Ans.—Mange is a parasitic disease, and is very contagious. Treatment consists in removal of the scabs by warm soap-suds, and, if necessary, a brush, and a thorough application of tobacco—1½ ounces, and water 2 pints, prepared by boiling. It is more probable that your bull has eczema, which is less serious and more easily cured. For this wash thoroughly with warm soap suds, using a brush if necessary, then blanket and dress once daily with a warm solution of corrosive sublimate, 25 grains to a quart of water.

GOSSIP.

Between cups, plates and cash prizes at the leading English shows this season, J. J. Cridlan's great champion Aberdeen Angus heifer, Clasp II., credited her worthy breeder and exhibitor with trophies to the value of over $1,000.

Live-stock ear-labels cost but little, and are a great convenience in keeping records of the breeding and ownership of animals. Name of owner and number of animal being stamped on each label, and the label lasts the lifetime of the animal. F. G. James, Bowmanville, has been making and supplying these labels for many years and with complete satisfaction to users. See his advertisement in this paper, and write for his circular giving prices and particulars.

A very commendable little booklet of 68 pages, called "The Golden Stream," has been recently issued by the International Harvester Company of America. This booklet covers a multitude of vital facts relative to the plain, ordinary, everyday cow in a very interesting manner. Such up-to-date topics as "The Dual-purpose Cow," "Bovine Tuberculosis," "How to Make a Babcock Test," "Rations for Dairy Cows," "The Feeding Value of Silage," and "Advantages of Dairy Farming," etc., are discussed. In general the purpose of the book is to impress the farmer with the proper relation of the cow to our modern civilization as the source of a golden stream of wealth. It will be greatly appreciated, especially by farmers and dairymen. A copy of the booklet may be obtained by writing the publisher for any one of the various I. H. Co. branch houses.
