The Original Gas By-Law in 1854

The original by-law giving the charter to the Brantford Gas Company was passed away back in 1854, when James Kerby was mayor. It still holds good. It was adopted subject to a general Legislative Act, then existing, which says, Clause 28:

"And be it hereby enacted that every such company shall construct, and locate their Gas Works, or Water Works, or Gas and Water Works, and all apparatus and appurtenances thereunto, belonging, or appertaining or therewith connected, and wheresoever situated, as in nowise to endanger the public health or safety."

City Life is a Blot on Civilization He Says.

Cities Are Dominated by Rich Parasites, Rural People Ignorant.

[Canadian Press Despatch]

TORONTO, Dec. 17 .- That agriculture is stagnant and the rural disto swell the cities, was the statement of W. C. Good of Brantford, master speech at the 39th, annual meeting here to-day. He congratulated the association however, on the unanlmity shown by the farmer organizations of the prairie provinces in presenting their claims at Ottawa recently. He thought they were on the eve of a great forward movement.

"Hitherto the vast resources of our country, nay even the life and character of its people have been exploited and waste in order to make possible the enrichment and aggrandisement of the few. Signs are not wanting that new life is beginning to make itself felt. Let us fan the feeble flame before which creed and oppression will ultimately wither away." Referring to the rapid growth of cities at the expense of the rural districts he declared that the withdrawal of the best blood from the rural district would mean deterioration of rural life and social and national disaster. The modern city with its problems its inequality, its enervating atmosphere and its crippling of child life was a blot on civilization. The city dominated by a few rich parasites with an ignorant, inefficient and de-pendent rural proletariat together mark social decay and the time is not far distant when such civilization must disappear."

The modern city with its problems its inequality, its enervating atmosphere and its crippling of child life, was a blot on cvilization.

In proof of his contentions he said: "During the last decennial census period, 1902-1911 of all in Canada, this rural population increased 17.16 per cent. while the urban population increased 62.25 percent. The contrast holds good in every province.

The cities have grown with feverish haste. A class of idle rich has grown up in our cities to whose love of astentation commerce and industry are now pandering. Enervated and miserable specimens of humanity rush about the country in great cars, flaunt their wealth in our faces, tear up our roads and cast their dust upon our farms.

As remedies, Mr. Good suggested: "The abolition of protection tariffs. "Ceasing to allow the unearned increment in land values to be appro-
