THEIR FAVORITE BOOKS.

Copper read only his Bible and his favorite novel, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Voltaire's favorite classical author was Juvenal, the satirist.

Caesar Borgia had a library of works relating mostly to art.

Rostand for nearly 50 years read nothing but French novels.

Jean Paul Richter had only five or six books, all philosophical.

Titian read his prayer book and the metamorphoses of Ovid.

Paul Veronese thought there was no book equal to the "Assisi."

Lord Clive said that "Robinson Crusoe" was his best book he ever read.

Franklin read all he could find relating to political economy and finance.

Hogarth was fond of joke books and fables and enjoyed them immensely.

Michael Angelo was fond of the books of Moses and the psalms of David.

Cherubini was a lover of botany and made collections of works on the subject.

Mario, the great tenor, read anything he could obtain relating to sports or hunting.

George III for many years of his life read nothing but his Bible and prayer book.

"Papa" Haydn liked stories, and he said, "The more love there is in the better."

Da Vinci read Pindar and thought him the noblest poet who ever wrote in any language.

Swift made a special study of the Latin satirists and imitated their style and language.

St. John Chrysostom never tired of reading and imitating the works of the apostle John.

Heine seldom read anything but poetry, which seemed to him just as good as any other kind of literature.

Every similar thing is done today by people who buy spectacles or eyeglasses from men who sell them on the streets or have their eyes fitted by opticians who have no qualifications for doing the work.

A surprising number of people buy their glasses from vendors on the streets. They get glasses for 50 cents which seem to them just as good as any other kind of glasses.

Glasses acquired in all sorts of ways by inheritance or exchange from a friend or even glasses found on the streets are used to the detriment, even the destruction of the wearer's sight.

"People seem to think glasses are like clothes," said an old oculist the

The Salvation Army.

THE LIFE OF THESE SELF-SACRIFICING

WORKERS OFFER ONE

OF HARDSHIP

While on duty Capt. Ben. Bryan was Stricken

With a Supposed Incurable Disease and

Faced to Rout the Work-House

Recovered His Health.

From the News, Alexandria, Ont.

The life of a Salvation Army worker very far from being a smooth sailing. His duties are not only arduous, but they are called upon by the regulations of the Army to conduct out-door meetings at all seasons and in all kinds of weather. This being the case it is little wonder that the health of these self-sacrificing workers frequently give way.

Capt. Ben. Bryan, whose home is at Massachusetts, is well known in this city, his former connection with Army, having been stationed at such important points as Montreal, Toronto, Kingston, Guelph and Brockville, in Canada, and at Schenectady, Troy and Albany, in the United States. While on duty he was attacked by a so-called incurable disease, but having been restored to health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, he is now a representative of the Army, and is now in the city of Alexandria, Ontario.

The story of his illness and subsequent cure by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, reads like a miracle, and is given in his own words as follows: "While stationed at Deser-ville, in 1897, I was attacked with what the doctors called 'Chronic Spinal Meningitis.' The symptoms were somewhat similar to those preceding a pleuritic attack, but were accompanied by spasms which, when the pain became too severe, rendered me unconscious. The length of these unconscious spells increased as the
