A Case Where Silence is Golden.

THE man was watering the front-yard grass with a hose.

He was, in his shirt sleeves and smoked a cigar. He looked comfortable. A cadaverous, middle-aged man came along, leaned against the iron fence and mopped his forehead.

"Giving it a drink, eh?" said he to the man with the hose.

"Yes," said the latter, good-naturedly. "Waiting her down a bit."

"Next little bit of lawn, that," said the man outside the fence.

"Uh-huh," said the man with the hose. "Jolled the landlord into resod-ding it this spring. Then, after that, I whiddled him—or my wife did, for I never met the old duck—into scattering clover seed all over it, so that I've got it in pretty good shape now."

"Must have an easy landlord," commented the man leaning on the iron fence.

"Easy?" said the man with the hose, shifting his cigar to the other side of his face. "Well, my, that old gazabo is just pie, that's what he is—pie. Only way I can account for the easiness of that man is that he's looney, or that he's so rich that he don't know where to blow himself first."

"Go 'way!" said the man outside.

"Surest thing you know," said the man in his shirt sleeves. "I've only been living in that house about seven months, and if that old lunatic hasn't spent $350 in repairs since I've been here he hasn't spent a cent."

"Well, I swan!" said the man outside.

"Fact," said the man with the hose.

"And the beauty of it is I only pay $45 a month for the house, whereas the folks all up and down the block, living in exactly the same kind of houses, have to cough up their little $55 or regularly as the moon goes around."

"Did you ever?" said the man outside the fence, taking a bandanna out of his hat and mopping his forehead.

"That's right," said the man with the hose. "I first moved in here—let's see, yes it was on the third of December. Knew I had a bargain in the house in just the shape it was then, but I believe in getting all I can in this life, and so I sent my wife down to the old duffer's office to make some demands for repairs. First she tackled him for an entirely new furnace, and blamed it for the cold weather that it like to drive us out of doors."

"Well, well!" said the cadaverous man.

"Uh-huh," said the man in his shirt sleeves, biting off the end of a fresh cigar. "Then, that having been so easy, I told my wife that she might as well hit the old coddler up for gas both upstairs and down. She hit him up. Was it easy? Well, it was just like drinking chocolate ice cream soda on a hot night, that's all," and the man with the hose smiled very broadly.

"Then," he went on, "I got kind of grouchy with the porcelain bathtub.

The bathtub was all right, but I'd seen some better ones in the lumber window. So I tackled him and I thought that I might as well have my wife ask for one of the best in the market. Got it porelamin tub within eight blocks of here, then I don't know it, that's all."

"Must be a bully landlord, that,"

said the man leaning against the iron

fence.

"Yes, or clean out of his mind," said the fortunate tenant. "Then—"

"John!" came a feminine voice from the second-story window.

"Wait a minute, I'm busy," said the shirt-sleeved man, in reply to the feminine voice. "Then, seeing that the old duffer was of the sort that just loves to harp his money at the little birdies, I sent the wife down to sound him early in the spring, on the subject of a complete repainting inside. Say, inside of four days after she tackled him turned up the painters weren't at work, and I'll bet they used 40 different kinds of paint like the like of that."

"I sure never did," said the man outside.

"Oh, John, just run up here a minute; I want to see you," came the feminine voice from the upper regions.

"Oh, now, now, dear; haven't I been watering the grass yet? I was going to ask the pin-headed old landlord to let us have a new baby grand piano," he went on, addressing the man outside, "but I didn't want to be ap-parented for fraudulent practices, so I had him off light the next week. Had my wife go down and strike him for a gas range for the kitchen. Well, sir, he sent one up that couldn't have stood him one penny less'n $40; enough room in it to take for a brigade of cavalry, almost."

"Well, I wonder!" put in the cad-
