The November Rod and Gun

While notable for the variety and range of its contents, the November number of the Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, at Woodstock, Ont., in accordance with the season has no less than seven hunting stories. In addition, the opening one, descriptive of an official visit to the Indian reserves for the purpose of paying the treaty money, will attract much attention. An account of a Trip to Nipigon, after an absence of twenty-eight years, contrasting conditions then and now, brings forcibly home to the readers the advances made in Canada in the last quarter of a century. A Winter's trip through Algonquin Park, the great national playground of Ontario, by the Superintendent, shows how well the public interests are guarded by those in charge. From shelter house to shelter house these men travel all winter and do their best to prevent poaching in the national reserve. A Fishing Trip to New Foundland, the climbs of the Alpinists, a sarcastic paper on the Perils of the Chase and numerous others, all having their own interests make up a number every sportsman will be glad to possess and one which he should make sure he does not miss.
