

DEAN OF NEW YORK NEWSPAPER WOMEN.

"JENNIE JUNE."

"Jennie June," recently appointed Public School Inspector of New York, is the dean of the newspaper women of New York. She is in private Mrs. Jennie Cunningham Croly. Mrs. Croly is distinguished for many abilities, chief among which has been her genius as a writer. It was she who originated the now commonplace "syndicate letter," thereby creating an epoch in journalism. She was, too, the first person to establish a woman's department in the daily press. Mrs. Croly has now reached the ripe age of 67, but she retains most the activity that has made her familiar with the American reading public. She was born in England, I came to the United States with father in 1841. Her husband, David G. Croly, whom she married in 1857, was a widely-known newspaper man. Mrs. Croly's first newspaper work was done as the editor of one of the Demorest publications. Later she was prominently associated with several leading New York newspapers.
