Bodies of Murdered King and Prince Taken to the Pantheon—Republicans Say Republic Will Come Silently and Suddenly.

Lisbon, Feb. 8.-With the church bells olling continually, the bodies of the nurdered King and Crown Prince, in two murdered King and Crown Prince, in two golden chariots shrouded in black velvet and drawn by eight hooded horses, were accorted by a glittering funeral pageant to-day across Lisbon to the Portuguese Pantheon and laid at rest beside their ancestors of the Braganza dynasty. Not a single untoward incident marred this last act of the tragedy. The vague forebodings proved baseless, and there, is a general feeling of relief to-night that all passed well, in view of the political turnoil. The great outpouring of people along the line of procession was notewortly. They packed the pavements, crowded the windows, and choked the side streets. While evidences of deep and popular sorrow seemed to be absent, many stood with uncovered heads as the funeral cars passed, and nowhere was actual disrespect witnessed.

When the members of the Court and the special representatives of foreign countries entered the chapel for the last brief service the King remained behind. Neither he nor the two Queens followed the cortege to the cathedral. The violent death of his father, it is explained, absolved King Manuel from conforming to the tradition of walking behind the dead to the grave. Nevertheless, his absenciand the absence of Queen Amelia and the dowager Queen has caused universal comment, being generally attributed to other reasons. Cavalry with pikes led the way: infantry and artil-lery brought up the rear. The cortege proper was surrounded by squadrons of dragoons. It consisted of the funeral dragoons. It consisted of the functar cars, following in the wake of high-seated gilded coaches, each drawn by six pairs of richly caparisoned mules. In these coaches rode the special Ambas-sidous and the high dignitaries of Court. Riding alongside of these were special platoons of Hussars with drawn sabres. The crown, veiled with crepe, was borne in a separate carriage. The sword-bearers, black-capped, and the staff-bearers walked ahead of the funeral cars, and three rows of taper-bearers on either in the wake of high and three rows of taper-bearers on either side. Bare-headed lackeys in the royal livery of red and yellow and halberdiers with arms reversed marched behind the cars. Here also came the mounts of the dead master's, covered with black . The sleeves of the soldiers the whips of the coachmen, hilts of swords, caps of grooms and points of lances all bore crepe. The street lamps veiled and lighted heightened the effect of the cortege.

The religious service at the church was very stately. The interior was draped and literally buried in floral tributes. The bodies will lie in state for three days, and then will be consigned to the tombs in the Pantheon.

The Republican leaders in Portugal are to-day in extremely high spirits. They assert confidently that a republic is now a matter of months, not of years. A competent spokesman said to-day: The end of monarchy is near. It will some as unexpectedly as did the murder of the King and the Crown Prince, and the world will wake up one morning to find a republic in Portugal. We are convinced that the revolution will be a peaceful one. It is a mistake for foreigners to imagine that the people of Portugal are not awake. They is peaceful one. It is a mistake for for-eigners to imagine that the people of Portugal are not awake. Lord Charles has just received a nasty blow under which he is smarting keenly. Lor Esher, who enjoys the King s fullest confidence, and who was appointed by His Majesty to edit Queen Victoria's letters, and is one of King Edward's most valued advisers on military and mayal matters, has written a letter to the new organization, the Imperial Maritime League, in which he states most emphatically that there is no need for inquiry into the state of the navy.

This is a direct thrust at Lord Charles, This is a direct thrust at Lord Charles, who a few months ago, before he entered into his present undertaking, not only publicly criticized the policy of the first sea lord, but suggested by polite implication that Sir John deserved to be shot like Byng. Admiral Sir John Pisher is a special favorite of the King, and Lord Esher's reference to the Lord of the Admiralty is generally supposed to have been at the instigation of his Majesty.

Although Lord Charles is at present on King Edward's black list, he was a great favorite with his mother, Queen Victoria, whose naval aide de camp he was from 1896 to 1897. She thought that the Admiralty might well profit by his advice, and it is to her personal intervention that his criticisms of the mavy in the latter year did not redound to his discredit and that he was shortly afterward raised to the rauk of Rear Admiral.
