Cause of the War and its probable issue.

• • • • We will now refer to the causes which have involved these nations [Tur-key and Russia] in the miseries and guilt of war. Louis Napoleon, raised to supreme rule in France, in pursuance of the policy which prompted the overthrow of the republicans who held sway in Rome, and the restoration of the Roman Pontiff to his throne, obtained a firman from the Ottoman Porte, declaring him. Louis Napoleon, Protector of the Holy Places. Under the influence of French diplomacy, which did not heaitate to threaten hostilities if its de-mands were not complied with, certain privi-leges were accorded to the Latin Church which had previously been shared in common with the Greek Church, or possessed by the Greek Church alone. These privileges seem to the types of a distant Protestant of the most trivial kind. Thus did they appear to the judgment of the Ottoman Porte. The Moslems of Syria have long gased with wonder and contempt at the unseemly and violent struggies of Greek and Latin Christians, who have in murderous strife stained with Christian blood the floors of the venerable Church of the Holy Sepulehre. Mahommedan police have often kept the rival worshippers of the same God, from cutting each other's throats on what was deemed to be the very grave of the Redeemer of the world. The Carr professed high indignation at the favor shewn to the followers of the Latin Church; and he sent one of the highest dignitaries of his court, Prince Menschlikof, to Constantinople to demand restitution or reparation. By the ju-dicious aid of the English and French diplo-matists the question of the Holy Sepuler. Makommedan police have were dignity and to Solyman and Othman to reject the in-sub the Kultar which should have the bind-ing force of a solemn treaty. The object ioogut through such Convention was, to all in-tents and purposes, to make the Case due virtual rules of those Christian subjects of the Data the demand been complied with Turkey which, under penalty of Russian treased, and a convent not be met Convent in the virt

He might expect but little interruption from neighbouring stations. Sweden and Dunmark were too impotent to breath dissportation. Prusia owaed Nicholas's brother-in law for King. Atatria owaed her existence to Rassian aid, and could not forget the services that brought eap-tive Hungary to her feet. France, if united in purpose and policy with England, could trouble his dreams-but would England trust the man whose uncle had died in St. Heleun, and against whose dreaded ambition she had samed her militis !--would France ever forget or forgive the victors at Waterloo !- But England trust the method barnes a principal part in the destruction of the Turkish fleet at Navarino ; had annotioned Russian aggrandisement on the Danabe. Englishd too was busy in her work-shops--at her looms, in her dockyards and at her mines. Peace Societies were lulling the British loot sleep. Cotton-lords, with Cobden as their prophet, were deelaring that England's great mission was to forge plough shares and print callcos for all makind. Pahereston, whom Russis had never been able gither to frighten or cajole, was no bonger the guiding genus of England's foreign policy. Aberdeen was England's Prime Minister. race still raled around the Golden Horn-and the Straits of the Bosphorus and the Hellespont scaled the Mediterranean against the fleets of Sebastapol. Since the foundation of the Rus-sian monarchy, Constantinople had been the object of the Schavonian's panting desire-Nicholas mistook desire for destiny. He was weary of waiting to clutch the coveted prize-there was danger in further delay. Turkey whom all men had thought dying, seemed to have passed the dangerous crisis of her fate. She had survived the loss of Greece. Egypt was no longer an object of dread. The latest discoveries in the military art were being intro-duced into the Ottoman armies ; and discipline was superseding insubordination. Commerce was rapidly extending. Steamboats were ply-ing upon the Turkish waters. The ers of Rail-Roads and Electric Telegraphs was dawning upon the taciturn Turkman. Newspapers were discussing polities in the Turkish capital. Mohammedan fanatiesm was dying out ; and the causes of Christian discontent were expir-ing. Protostantism fresh from Republican America had a legal standing in the dominions, of the Sublime Porte; and built churches on the banks of the Euphrates and within the walls of Constantinople. An Anglican Bishop wore his mitre upon Mount Zion ; and a Pro-testant ministry was ro-lighting-re-trimming the quivering lamps of Swyrna. The generous Sultan had dared to give an asylum to the pa-triots of Hungary. There was progress everywhere. Turkey

Saltan had dared to give an asylum to the pa-triots of Hungary. There was progress everywhere. Turkey might be regenerated—nay become Protestant and free. If Egypt " hasest of kingdoms," had awakened to new life, why might not Turkey do the same ! Besides, France had founded a powerful colony in Algiers—she might extend her conquests, and the gramsry of Ancient Rome might again be enriched with golden harvesta. The increase of Franch power in that direction might be destructive to Rassian interests, and a Darrier to Russian ambition. The Autocrat desmed it high time to be up and deing. He quictly but conrectingly mode wast
