Trade Between Canada and Newfoundland.

We thank the Canadian Trade Commissioner of Canada for a copy of the Canadian Trade Report for March, 1911. In it there is a tabular statement of annual trade returns from 1896 till March 31st, 1911. These returns show the extraordinary growth in our trade since the establishment of the cross country and Gulf service. The value of the total trade between the two countries for the year ending June 30th, 1897 was $2,144,639. This had increased to $5,690,272 for the year ending March 31st, 1911. This gives an increase of $3,545,633. Canadians, however, sold to us for the year last mentioned two million dollars worth more than they bought from us, the figures being $1,818,260 and $3,872,012, respectively. Although this is so, the rate of growth of exports is greater than that of the imports. For instance, the showing of exports from Newfoundland to Canada for the year ending June 30th, 1897, was $452,675; the showing is now four times as much, viz., $1,818,260. During the same time the imports have gone up about two and one third times, the figures being $1,892,563 and $3,872,012.

Attempted Burglary.

Yesterday morning when Mr. Chas. Hutton came down to his music store he was surprised to notice that some person was there before him and had turned things pretty well topsy turvy. The intention of the burglar, for it was a person whose idea it was to rob the place, was to get all the money he could and he evidently made a start for here, but evidently, the proprietor had taken the proceeds of the day's sales from the office on the evening previous when leaving the place. The would be thief entered the rear of the store and got in by forcing the window up. After searching the office he then burst open the door leading to the music store but could not force the door which gives access to that department. The net result of his efforts was that he had to leave without securing what he so thoroughly sought for and nothing else came in to his possession.

A SWEET SINGER—Miss Thompson, of Hr. Grace, rendered a solo at St. Andrew's Church during the service on Sunday night. She has a sweet contralto voice and her singing captivated the large congregation present.

Dangerous Crises.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-Day. No action will be taken to put an end to the crisis on the relations of the two houses of parliament until the return of the King from Ireland and Scotland. The amended Parliament Bill enters upon the report stage tomorrow this week for the third reading to take place until next week. A fortnight's delay may suffice to arrange a settlement on the lines of Lord Newton's amendment, which provides a guarantee that the legislative powers of the House of Lords shall not be further impaired by the mechanism of the Parliament Bill before the next general election. A political truce is highly desirable if not indispensable, when the most brilliant monarch in Europe deliberately takes advantage of the preoccupation of both England and France with issues of political partnership. After the chatter over the Declaration of London we have now a real danger to face in the projected establishment of a naval station in the Moroccan coast, where British commerce and many important trade routes could be intercepted by German cruisers in time of war. The Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary have set their faces strongly against the partition of Morocco and the acquisition of a naval station there by Germany. If they are strongly supported by the French Government, Spanish intrigues with Germany may be counteracted and the conference for the revising of the Algeciras agreement, in accordance with the Kaiser's wishes may be prevented. The Morocco affair will be King George's first serious diplomatic post with his clever and resourceful minister, who has found a successful rival when King Edward came to the Throne.

Want This Woman Saved From Gallows

Chicago, July 7.—Some of the most prominent men of Chicago have taken up the case of Mrs. Angelina Napolitano, who is under sentence of death for the murder of her husband at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. The date for the execution is set for August 12. Unless the calculations of the prison physicians are wrong, August 12th will fall upon two weeks after Mrs. Napolitano becomes a mother. The campaign in her behalf takes the form of an appeal to every woman in Chicago to write a letter to Sir Allen Aylesworth, the Minister of Justice, urging him to grant Mrs. Napolitano a respite until a month or six weeks after the child is born.

King George, who has presented a challenge trophy for cyclists, to be competed for at the Norwich Charity Sports, seems to have, quickly mastered the art of cycle riding. "He didn't want much teaching," his coach remarked afterwards. "He got on the machine, wobbled about a bit, and then away he went." Most members of the Royal Victoria are cyclists; even Queen Victoria used to ride a tricycle. But before she could be persuaded to countenance this new means of locomotion there were some rowdy scenes between Her Majesty and some of the very young Princesses, who wanted to ride bicycles. She expressed high disapproval of ladies who rode bicycles. "But, grandmamma," exclaimed one exasperated young Princess, "everybody knows I have legs!"

Constantly At It.

A minister, who was none too careful in his habits, was induced by his friends to take the pledge; but his health appeared to suffer, and the family doctor at last reluctantly ordered a "wet" drop of whisky daily. "Oh, I dare not, doctor," replied the minister. "Peggy, my old housekeeper, would tell the whole parish." "When do you shave?" asked the doctor. "In the morning." "Then," said the doctor, "shave it at night; and when Peggy brings up your hot water, you can take your glass of whisky just before going to bed." The minister appeared to improve in health and spirits, and the doctor, on meeting Peggy one day, said: "I'm glad to hear, Peggy, that your master is much better." "Indeed, sir," she replied, "he is better in some ways; but I think his brain's affected—there's something wrong w' his mind. He used to shave in the morning, but now he shaves after dinner, he shaves at night—in fact, he's always shaving."
