Orange Parade.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—The Orangemen held their annual parade at this place a while ago, which was one of the best that was ever held in this place. They left their hall at Middle Bight, at 10 o'clock a.m., and proceeded to Manuels station headed by Bro. Edward Porter, on his white charger, and their fine brass band. On arriving at Manuels station, ranks were opened and the lower degree members counter-marched up through the procession and proceeded to Fox Trap Church of England, where the Church service was held and the Rev. E. K. H. Caldwell preached a very inspiring sermon suitable to the occasion. After service the society left the church and proceeded to their hall at Middle Bight, where the ladies had refreshments provided for the brethren to supply the inner man. After the tea was finished the W.M. Bro. Samuel J. Haines called the meeting to order, and after giving a few remarks on the splendid work of the society, he called upon the following: Bro. Samuel J. Haines, P.M., Chairman, address; Bro. Edward Porter, address and Bro. Samuel Eason, song.

SECOND PART.

Bro. Walter Rendell, address on Orangeism in the British Colonies. Bro. John R. Martin, P.M., address. Bro. John Eason, address. Shall we from the Orange sever, By the grace of God we'll never! We shall wave our flag for ever In old Newfoundland.

The Chairman then made a few remarks and the singing of the National Anthem brought the gathering to a close.

Yours truly,

Kelligrews, Jan. 30th, 1913.

Wants It Stopped

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I wish to call the attention of the Council to the disgraceful state of the drain on Monkstown Road, opposite Fleming Street. One of two residents living on the corner of Fleming Street, are constantly throwing filthy refuse into this drain and what seems incredible in this twentieth century, the residents use this drain for dumping "night soil." Church goers, who used this street yesterday, had to pass this vile cess pool. The lack of sewerage connection is no excuse for such criminal conduct, as all refuse matter should be collected and taken away by the Sanitary Department. If the Council would prosecute all who throw refuse on the streets and compel the saving of same to be removed a night by the Sanitary Dept., a surprising reduction would be made in the number of cases of fevers and other diseases which abound. There are other places on Monkstown Road, Fleming Street and Donnelly's Lane which would benefit by the strict application of the law to the offenders as many children are constantly playing near these disease breeding spots. Where is our Public Health Officer? Why does he not protect the population against such outrages? Another matter which shows "something rotten in our civic administration," is the conduct of the Sanitary employee who work on Circular Road West, a visit to this street to-day will reveal the contents of about a dozen "sacks" carefully spread all over the street, this abominable practice has been pursued all winter and common decency demands that it be stopped immediately.

Trusting that the Council will appoint a capable inspector for this section and enforce the law,

I am, yours etc.,
PRO BONO PUBLICO.

Caught Napping.

Mr. Brown was rapidly acquiring the habit of staying out later at night than his wife thought was good for him. In fact, she began to grow quite unreasonably suspicious of his actions.

One day he would bring forward the excuse that he had been detained at the office; on another that, quite by accident, he had met with an old business friend. And then, his little repertoire of excuses at last exhausted, he came home and said that his partner had been taken suddenly ill, and he had been forced to sit up with him. Of course, Mrs. Brown did not believe this story. Still, try though she would, she could not elucidate the mystery. Accordingly, she commissioned little Tommy to see what he could do in the matter.

"And did you hold your sister's friend's hand?" inquired Mr. Brown's young hopeful.

"No," replied the reminiscent parent, in an absent moment; "I only wish I had. D'you know, he held four times twice."

"I've never loved a girl but you," Such was the young man's exclamation.

"If that," the maiden said, "is true, You go and get a reputation!"

Wheat

BY H. L. RANN.

Wheat is a hardy cereal which is grown to the best advantage in countries where it gets so cold that the soil has to be cultivated with a blow pipe. The best wheat in the world is grown in the frigid zone of northern Canada, where a frost can be found 2,000 feet below sea level.

Wheat is the father-in-law of the breakfast food industry, and has taken the place of a number of popular substitutes, such as shavings, sawdust and soy beans. If it were not for wheat, several of our most prominent and plethoric breakfast food magnates would have to get acquainted with work, instead of riding around in conkskin overcoats and writing advertisements addressed to people who are long on appetite and short on bright red corpuscles.

Wheat was invented by the Chinese about 2700 B. C. The Chinese are a cautious people, so they fed the first crop to the missionaries, then sat down and waited for results. As none of the missionaries was seized with anything, more wheat was planted the next year and the hotel pancake was introduced. This teaches us that no nation which lives on hoary traditions, pancakes and chop suey will rise very high in the scale of human intelligence.

Wheat is sold by the bushel to shoestring speculators who buy it on margins and sell it with a sense of deep injury. It is very exciting pastime to margin 20,000 bushels of wheat with collateral consisting of a bicycle pump and a Round Oak stove, but it is done every day by fascinated cashiers who hug the stock ticker at the close of the morning service. The price of wheat is fixed at Liverpool in such a manner as to cause several melancholy advances in the cost of flour.

Next to fish, there is nothing so good for people whose brains need resuscitating as wheat. If proof readers and compositors would eat two pounds of whole wheat for breakfast every morning, there would be fewer boneheads committed in the society column.

The First Lifeboat.

It is to France, says the "Westminster Gazette" that we are indebted for nearly every invention that pertains to saving life at sea. We learn this fact from an interesting book, "The Lifeboat and Its Story," by Mr. Noel T. Methley, F.R.G.S., published by Sidwick and Jackson. The first lifeboat designed and built upon principles which rendered her safer than other vessels was invented by a Frenchman, a Monsieur Bernieres, in 1765. The first belt that would support its wearer in the water by Galacaz another Frenchman; and as early as 1757 we have records of a French method of resuscitating the apparently drowned. It was left, however, to other countries to bring their lifeboat service to a high state of efficiency, before France made any organized effort in this direction.

Good For The Cafe.

The proprietor of the Cafe Edelweiss was faced with ruin. Somehow he had failed to hit the taste of the citizens of the little Bavarian town in which he carried on business, and he was at his wits' end to find a device for attracting the fickle public. Suddenly he hit on a brilliant idea. He inserted two advertisements in the local newspaper. One ran:

"Young man with large income desires to make the acquaintance of a young lady with a view to marriage. Money a matter of secondary importance."

The other ran:

"Young lady with 50,000 marks (later, more) wishes to marry a young man. A gentleman with good character, even if he is without means, will find an ideal home."

These announcements brought dozens of replies daily, and, writing on behalf of the imaginary young man and the rich and also imaginary young lady, the proprietor of the Edelweiss made a rendezvous with all applicants in, very naturally, his cafe.

The establishment hummed with life for a few days, until somebody smelt a rat, and the enterprising proprietor was forced to explain his method of filling it before the local magistrates.

When an old gentleman waggled his head and says: "Ah, so I thought when I was your age!" It is not thought an answer at all if the young man reports: "My venerable sir, so I shall most probably think when I am yours." And yet the one is as good as the other.—Robert Louis Stevenson.
