The Price of Potatoes.

(Montreal Herald.)

One of the western papers reports that while peeling potatoes, a woman cut into one that was hollow and inside it found a note from the farmer who had raised the potatoes. The note read:

I got sixty-nine cents a bushel for these potatoes. How much did you pay for them?

She wrote back:

I paid $4 per bushel.

The farmer sent her just one more letter. It said:

I got sixty-nine cents for those potatoes. It could not have cost more than thirty-one cents to carry them to you. Who got the other $3? I am going to try to find out.

That was the end of the correspondence, but not the end of the matter. The farmer set out to look for the other $3 and the woman set out on the same search. Like thousands of producers and consumers, they have not yet discovered where it disappeared. The Hon. Mr. Crothers or Mr. W. F. O'Connor, K.C., the high cost of living commissioner, may know, but neither of them have yet told the public.
