CRICKET CANADIANS AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 21.-On a sloppy wicket the Canadian cricket team went to bat Saturday afternoon, playing against an all-Chicago eleven. The Canadians made 105 runs in their ining. Cooper, who was in for 90 minutes gave a capital exhibition of defensive cricket, although he hit freely on the leg side. He scored 26, and Laing, who did not bat with his usual freedom, got 25. wickets went down was most disappointing to their admirers, six wickets being lost for 40 runs. E. W. Clark, jun., however, saved his side from humiliation by making a splendid stand. He was seventh on the list, and carried his bat out for a cleanly placed 28, and this time saw the score for his side raised from 40 to 123. Large Number of Non-Resident Students Expected.

south, and has spread over the entire country. In New York city the build-ing which is their headquarters there, was erected at a cost of $250,000, the donation of one of the Vanderbilts. The building here, as in other cities, will differ from the ordinary Y. M. C. A. headquarters, in that it will serve the purpose of a hotel for the members, where lodgings and meals may be had.

Mr. McHattie, locomotive foreman, has received a letter from D. A. Budge, secretary of the Montreal Y. M. C. A., concerning the matter. Mr. Budge and another gentleman were sent over the field from Montreal to Chicago about a month ago to report on the outlook, number of men, whether suitable buildings could be obtained, etc., at the various railway centers, and the outcome of their reports is that Manager Hays decided to institute a Y. M. C. A. branch at once in Toronto. London and Niagara Falls will be the next places. In the meantime a provisional committee will be formed here so that the work may be proceeded with as rapidly as possible when the time comes. Driver Martindale has been attending the annual convention of the railway section of the Young Men's Christian Association at Montreal for the past week.

DIED ON THE DEEP.

Death of Mrs. (Ron.) Adam Brown, of Hamilton-Well-Known in London.

The sad and unexpected death of Mrs. Adam Brown, the wife of Hamton's genial postmaster, and mother of Mrs. E. Brown-Smith, of this city, will be heard of with regret by many in London who knew the deceased. A dispatch from Quebec, dated Sunday, reads as follows: "The steamship Sardinian, which arrived up from Liverpool shortly after midnight, had on board the body of Mrs. Adam Brown, of Hamilton. The deceased lady was in her usual health when she boarded the vessel with her daughters at Liverpool. Death, which took place three or four days ago, was due to heart disease. Capt. R. Myles, of Toronto, who was second in command of the Shoeburyness team, and was a passenger by the same vessel, came up by train from Rimouski, and arrived several hours before steamer to break the news to Brown, who has been here since Friday to meet his wife. As soon as Capt. Myles told him in the Chateau Frontenac that he had come off the Sardinian, where he had seen Mrs.

Ball Player.

Buffalo, Sept. 20 .- A special to the Express from Rochester says: Edward N. Crane, an old-time baseball player, the hero of many a noted pitchers' battle, and at one time the ideal of the baseball enthusiasts all over the country committed enideal of country, committed suicide at Congress Hall Saturday night. His body was found this morning in the room he had occupied at the hotel for several weeks past. An empty vial that had contain-ed chloral, found on a chair beside the bed, a drinking glass in which was a small quantity of the diluted poison near by, and a thin coating of the drug on the dead man's lips and mustache, told the story of his death. In a fit of despondency he had taken his life.

Crane was born in South Boston 32 years ago. "Ned" joined the Boston Union Association in 1884. He played behind the het at that the behind the bat at that time, but he soon developed into a speedy pitcher, and when he went to Providence in 1884 he had acquired considerable distinction as a twirler. He played with Boston in 1886, and went to Toronto in 1887. The Canadians won the pennant that season, and it was generally conceded that it was owing to Crane's conceded that it was owing to Crane's good pitching that they captured the flag. He played on the New York Brotherhood team. He pitched for the New Yorks in the World's series against the St. Louis Browns, and aided or cartly in winning the series. ed greatly in winning the series for his team. The New Yorks won the pennant twice while he was a member of the club, and it was well under-stood that his pitching was largely responsible for it. He toured the world with the Spalding All-American team in the fall of 1888. During the trip he did excellent work. He pitched for Toronto early in the season of 1895. Then he came to Rochester and pitched a few games. When the season opened this year Crane was not in good condition. He was fleshy and clumsy, and showed plainly his years of dissipation. Springfield gave him a trial, but he lasted only two weeks. He played with Providence six weeks, but he was unable to get into condition, and was released. Then he came to Rochester and pitched a few games about the country. He then secured a position as an umpire in the Eastern

League, but could not leave whisky alone, so he lost that position after a two months' trial. Crane spent most of Saturday in his room at the hotel. Saturday night the proprietor told him that as he owed nearly $70 at the hotel, and did not seem to be making any effort to pay, he would have to give up his room. Crane said that he would pay. He went to his room at the usual hour Saturday night. At 10 o'clock this morning, when one of the chamber-maids at the hotel reported at the office that she was unable to get into Crane's room, a bell-boy was sent to the room. He looked over the transom and saw the man lying on the bed. The door was then unlocked, and it was found that Crane was dead. Crane had a wife and one child in Chicago. They have not been with him for over a year. Besides Crane's record on the diamond he made a record on the Cincinnati grounds Oct. 12, 1884. On that date he threw the ball 135 yards 1 foot 1 1-2 inches. This record has never been beaten.

The Swiss and Their Politics. "The Swiss and Their Politics" is the title of a very interesting article in the Journal of Sociology. In it the writer gives a graphic account of the way in which the Swiss make history thing will be done shortly towards the real. The thing that has impressed establishment of a Y. M. C. A. branch me most in Switzerland, he says, is pendence. And those whom we call This work has been going on for our more serious people are inclined some years in the Republic to the south, and has spread over the order waste of time. During the two months of my stay in Geneva, six days and six nights, that is, one-tenth of the entire time, was devoted to patriotic celebration, and that, too, not on the part of the light and frivolous members of society, but of the most serious members of the community. In 1602, on the night of the 12th of December, a poor washerwoman who lived on the wall of the city was making soup, when she discovered some soldiers of the Duke of Savoy in the act of scaling the wall. She hurled her soup on them, and raised the alarm, and the city was successfully defended. This gave rise to the three days' Festival of the Escalade, beginning Dec. 11. For days preceding the date there began to appear in the shop windows soup kettles done in choco late and wood and all sorts of materials bearing the date "1602." Shop windows were filled with masks of all imaginable shapes. Costumes were displayed, some of them very elegant and expensive, others cheap and fantastic. On the evening of the 11th I went to the circus, where, with about eight thousand other people. I sat for three hours in a freezing atmosphere witnessing patriotic performances. I paid 60 cents for my seat, and I think it was an average price. Leading citi-zens of Geneva took part in the exercises, which consisted in short addresses, songs, marches, dances, while some of it resembled an Iowa College "winter gym." In one scene cer-tain Austrians appeared, and strutted up and down the stage in full armor. An equal number of Frenchmen also appeared in shining array. A little later the Swiss came in, whose stalwart muscles were covered only by natural skin and armed only by real war clubs. All performed together a la Indian clubs. By a strange coincidence the Austrians and French were surrounded by the Swiss, thrown upon their backs, their arms wrested from them, and they demurely march ed out under the yoke. Another exercise well represented the spirit of the occasion. First, three athletes appeared, and one on the shoulders of the other two held aloft a card, having on one side in large characters the date 1291, and on the other the word "Alliance." The three men were the original cantons of the confederation of 1291. Next appeared five other athletes, and the eight threw themselves into a ladder displaying a new card with the same word and the date of 1352. Then are more men appeared, and with the aid of parallel ropes the thirteen lifted a man tow-ard the roof with the charmed word and the date 1513. Then five more, and the eighteen lifted a man above the supporting cable with the card and the date 1798. Finally the whole 22 lifted a man to the apex of the roof waving aloft "Alliance" and the date 1813. Then was brought in on a plat-form borne by four of these same stalwarts, a lady of Geneva who had con-sented to pose as Switzerland The four tenderly bore her up, and the eighteen took their positions around her in the four historic and impressive groups. As these lifted their their strong right arms in the attitude of defense the assembled thousands held their breath fill "Switzerland" and her defenders passed from the arena, and then they broke forth in loud applause.
