

5 Cups of Tea 1c.

Do you know that five cups of Red Rose Tea (40c. grade) only cost one cent?

You can actually make 200 cups from one pound.

It is easy to prove this. Just buy a package and try it.

RED ROSE TEA

MADAME'S WARD

BY PAULINE BEVERLY.

"For goodness' sake try to think better of that, old man!" I urged, dimly, as he came to the door with me, and we had for the second time clasped hands to say good-night. But he shook his head.

"No chance of my doing that, Ned, so don't think of it. I may go to the Cape. I had the offer of a good post there a month or two back. It may be vacant still."

"If you do, I shall go with you," I returned, thinking that this was worse and worse.

"Pooh! And break your mother's heart?" No, my boy, it's of no use asking me to stop and see her throw herself away on Froude—confound the lantern-jawed brute! He will never make her happy—mind that!"

"I don't believe I'll marry him when it comes to the push. She has made a nice middle of things, and so she will find out, and all for a few meddling words from heaven knows whom! That's what makes me so savage!"

"Who could it have been?" Yorke asked, suddenly.

"I haven't a notion, beyond that it must have been a person, whoever it was, who overheard you that night when I did. Who that was, goodness knows!"

"Why, I'll tell you," he said, deliberately—"Fraser Froude!"

"That it was not for I asked her, and she said 'No!'"

"She did?"

"Yes, and seemed astonished at the notion. It wasn't he?"

"I wish I knew who it was—I wish I knew!" Yorke said, musingly and gloomily, clenching the hand he had laid upon my shoulder.

A sudden thought came into my head which startled me, but I asked first—"What put Froude into your head?"

"Because I hate the fellow, I suppose," he returned, with the same moody face.

"Look here, Yorke," I went on, speaking out of my thought, "I suppose that if you said to a mademoiselle 'I am overheard, there was no danger in it?'"

"Danger?" he echoed, staring at me. "What do you mean?"

"Well, to you?"

"Not to me, most decidedly."

"Not to her—mademoiselle?"

"Certainly not—so far as I know, at any rate. She stands in no sort of danger to my knowledge, in the sense you mean, and did not then. Whoever it was, he or she has done me all the mischief that it was possible to do—you may be sure of that!"

"And, father, Froude, you have no sort of suspicion, I suppose. It must have been someone that hated you."

"No, shall I trouble myself to find out?" he replied, shrugging his shoulders. "Good-night, Ned, and thanks."

ADVERTISER PATTERNS

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN

8326

NO. 8326—WAIST PROTECTOR AND APRON.

Cut in sizes 34, 36, 42 inches bust measure. This useful little garment will be found invaluable by photographers, artists, bookkeepers, and others, engaged in work requiring protection to the waist and sleeves. It will also make an excellent kitchen apron with the skirt attached as seen in the back view. The sleeves are full enough to slip on easily over the dress sleeves underneath. The front is gathered to a belt, or it may be finished by tape, the ends brought around and tied in the back. Lawn, cambric, linen and denim are all serviceable and appropriate for making. The medium size will require 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch material.

A pattern of this illustration will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

ing white teeth were set on his underlip. Certainly he did not look much like a triumphant lover; and I wondered rapidly what could have happened to drive the usual suave smoothness from his face. Had he come to announce himself as Natalie's Orme's accepted suitor, and had Madame, getting those fine sentiments with which she had edified me at the time of his proposal been giving him a piece of her mind thereupon? It might be, for truly he looked angry enough.

I went into the house in a state of lively curiosity, hoping—although I knew there was no real hope of such luck—that Miss Nat might have come to her senses and given him his ring back, with her compliments. That there was something wrong I soon found when, after removing my coat and hat, I went into the library. Madame was pacing up and down, a look of such astonished trouble and incredulity upon her fine face that, even knowing all that I did know, I involuntarily asked her what was the matter.

"Edward, did you see that man?" she asked, coming to a standstill and laying her hand upon my shoulder; and then for the first time did I realize fully what a storm there was brewing. I do not suppose Madame had called me "Edward" a dozen times in my life.

PASTOR BOOTH SENDS NEW YEAR'S GREETINGS

Circular Addressed to Members of His Flock and Others.

Pastor George C. Booth, of the Gospel Tabernacle, Ottawa Avenue, near Adelaide Street, sends out the following greeting for the new year:

London, Dec. 28, 1909.

My Dear Friend,—I am writing you today to extend to you the season's greetings. It is the custom, in some way or other, at this season, to let one's friends know we are remembering them. So I am wishing you here, by the greetings of the season, desiring to assure you that I have not forgotten you, and that you have my best wishes for a bright new year, and that in this connection I am remembering you in prayer.

We are fast drawing to the close of another year, and ere long 1909 will be gone. Gone! Yes, gone, never to return. Gone, with its sighs and tears, its sorrows and heartaches, its disappointments and surprises, its regrets and intentions, its joys and delusions—and one whole year of your life and mine will soon be gone. The things we left undone will remain undone; the things we did do we will never be able to undo, for 1909 will soon have them beyond our reach.

Nineteen hundred and ten is almost here. It's coming—fast coming; coming with its battles and conflicts, its trials and struggles, its pleasures and happiness, and its golden opportunities. We shall soon be in it, living it away, as we have 1909? No, better, I trust. Better every way—better for God, better for my fellowman, and better for myself.

I am sending forth this letter to the old members of my church, to the old friends of my church, to its present members, to its present friends, to its friends in town, and to its friends out of town, wishing all a bright and prosperous new year, and extending to all my very best wishes. This I do for myself, and as pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, send you greetings from the tabernacle. May God bless you abundantly during the coming year, is my prayer and desire.

Included you will find a card announcing some special meetings we are to hold in the Gospel Tabernacle on Sunday, Jan. 2, 1910, the most important of the year. At 11 o'clock services. We want to see many—yes, all the old members with us at that service. The pastor's subject is "Regret and Purpose, or, What To Do With 1909 and 1910." Jan. 2, 1910, is "Home Sunday," and we are looking for you at the 11 o'clock service, and are hereby giving you some splendid selections on the gramophone. Mr. Geo. A. Hatch, the popular auctioneer, sang several songs, which were fully appreciated by those present.

One of the principal events of the evening occurred when Miss Pearl Anderson, the teacher, was called to the platform and presented on behalf of the scholars' parents, with a dozen silver teaspoons and a large fruit spoon. The address was read by Delmer Anderson and the presentation made by Ira Fortner.

Miss Anderson, although taken by surprise, replied in a suitable manner. The school treat, given by the teacher, was then handed to the scholars. Dr. D. G. McNeill, of Arva, filled the chair in a very able manner.

Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."

MRS. LIZZIE PAINTER

803 1/2 3d Ave. Evansville, Ind.

For twenty years we have been constantly receiving just such letters as these. There is scarcely a locality in the United States where there is not some one who can testify to the merits of this remarkably successful Heart Remedy.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.
