What Some People Say.

That a Sheffield tool firm threatens to employ German workmen if its employees do not submit to a reduction of pay.
That Colonel Cavanagh, of the Sixty-ninth regiment of the New York volunteers, says that he will go to Ireland if necessary.
That there appears to be no truth in the story that Sir John Macdonald is going to England after the session. He says he is coming to British Columbia.

THE HOUSEHOLD GOVERNMENT.

THE HOUSEHOLD GOVERNMENT. It is a household word that the household government is a household word. It is a household word that the household government is a household word. It is a household word that the household government is a household word.

IRISH HOME RULE.

Gladstone's Effort to Establish a Dublin Parliament.

New York, May 29.—G. W. Smalley's cable special to the Tribune from London of May 22nd says: Gladstone has now definitely resolved to bring the whole pressure of the party organization to bear against the independent liberals, who are intending to oppose the home rule bill. In order to give time for these ill-considered, but not ill-intended, measures, he has probably enough to do to bring about the meeting of the parliament in London, not only from the liberal headquarters in London, but from the liberal headquarters in the various towns and cities of the kingdom.

A Valuable Guide.

From the Salt Lake Tribune. There is a character connected with one of the liberal societies in this city who has on more than one occasion been the subject of abuse from the part of the liberal societies of the province. He is a person of high social position, and his name is Christian. "Now, ere," he remarks to the attentive reporter, "I have a word to say to the liberal societies of the province. I have a word to say to the liberal societies of the province. I have a word to say to the liberal societies of the province." The gentleman is a person of high social position, and his name is Christian. "Now, ere," he remarks to the attentive reporter, "I have a word to say to the liberal societies of the province. I have a word to say to the liberal societies of the province. I have a word to say to the liberal societies of the province."

STREET SPRINKLING.

Vigilant Support of the New Regulation.

The sprinkling of the streets began yesterday, a good deal of citizens, especially the merchants, are thankful for the first of the new regulation. Justice Gray is the one who has undertaken the defence and believe that other officers might do the same.

A Judge Prosecuted for Ethel.

A curious case came up lately before the British court. A judge was prosecuted for libel, and strange as it may seem, got out of the awkward position which he found himself in by means of a simple expedient. In August, 1885, one Hattie Gordon was tried for stealing a ring belonging to a lady. She was defended, but she was accused of stealing a ring belonging to a lady. She was defended, but she was accused of stealing a ring belonging to a lady.

The house of commons was crowded this evening, Mr. Gladstone's speech in reply to the question by Mr. Hicks Beach, Conservative, said that the government considered the original clause for the amendment of the home rule bill, not to set up a committee on the measure, but to amend the bill, and that it was unable at that moment to speak positively.

Annoying a Lady.

The Yorkshire court was lately guilty by the presence of a handsome couple as an intrusion on a public court. They were ushered into the justice's private room, where Justice White held a private examination. Detectives Shelly, of the Nineteenth precinct, fitted in and out of the room as if interested in the case, and it was learned that there would have been no case at all if the detective had not been appealed to by the young lady to aid her in riding herself of the annoyance of receiving letters, bouquets, and cream scraps of verse, from the young man who had supplanted her in the justice's private room. The young lady, however, Miss Flora Rosemount, a wealthy merchant's daughter, who was residing at No. 88 West Forty-sixth street, was constantly in receipt of messages and flowers from a young man whom she was unable to name, and who was constantly in receipt of messages and flowers from a young man whom she was unable to name.
