Campbellton, N. B., Dec. 31, 1914.

The Graphic wishes all its friends and patrons a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

THE PAST YEAR

In many respects the past year has been a banner one for Campbellton and the Bay Chaleur country. In Campbellton the amount of buildings erected has been greater than the previous year, while business as a whole has been very satisfactory, and but for the unsettled conditions of general trade arising out of the European war, this would have been a most successful year.

Throughout the entire county a marked improvement was felt in general trade. The lumber business was good, the establishing of the new pulp and paper mills at Chandler, Que., and Bathurst, N. B., militated for general progress. The fishing season was very successful, and crops were above the average, while prices reached a high level.

Taken as a whole the past year has been more than a favorable one in the entire district.

THE NEW YEAR

There are some who predict that 1915 will be one in which many industries will "mark time", and that we will see no new work of importance undertaken, because of the state of finances in the large centres.

In the lumber business the outlook is as good, if not a slight improvement over the past year. The lumber cut may not be quite as large, but a considerable quantity of logs is being carried over so that the mills will have enough to keep them busy next season.

It looks as if there will be a good market for our mills output, at as good and possibly better prices than that of the past year.

With regard to new industries, there have been persistent rumors of the establishing of a pulp and paper mill on the Restigouche. With respect to this, we have information from a reliable source that engineers have been at work for some time upon the plans for such an industry here. More than this we are not at liberty to state at the present time, but we hope soon to be able to give our readers further details. These plans are being made for gentlemen who have control of a very large amount of capital and should they decide to proceed, the state of the money market will not affect their plans.

The farmers, taking the advice of the Department of Agriculture, are planning an increased crop acreage for next season, which will mean more produce for the market, consequently more money for the farmer, which in turn will mean more business for our merchants.

In the United States signs of a general and permanent trade improvement are manifest. That is particularly important to Canada, for the commercial interests of these two countries are so closely allied that what affects one, to a great degree affects the other. It is encouraging, therefore, to find Dun's Review sizing up the situation as follows:

"That there is improvement in trade is made clear in the reports from all parts of the country, though the development is slow and irregular, and the gains already attained inspire confidence in further expansion with the advent of the new year. The prevailing optimism is strengthened by easier money and the notable improvement in the financial position; also by the fact that, while the present volume of business is much less than last year, the corner has been turned and the trend is now for better conditions."

All the factors felt to be operating to the expansion of industry and trade and external commerce in the United States should operate to the same end in Canada. Canada's closest business relations have always been with Great Britain and the United States.

HOW THE ALLIES FRATERNIZE IN FRANCE

GROUP OF BRITISH TOMMIES CONVEY THEIR APPRECIATION OF BELGIAN GALLANTRY BY MEANS OF A FLOWER.

How do the British soldiers get on with the French and Belgians when they are thrown together, as they inevitably must be? The question has occurred to many. How is it done? Mr. Neil Munroe tells us very interestingly in the London Daily Chronicle of November 27.

"Tommy," he says, "in the French conception, is the blond, handsome, carefree, rugged by Providence for fighting purposes and whetted to the finest edge by long professional training and the experience of colonial wars; a man with a passion for ease, and, therefore, invariably selected and appointed by the most heretical practical commercial nation in the world. His almost human song-trad is indicated in the pleasure he never makes a bayonet charge without a pipe in his mouth, and never being seen on the march but singing his national anthem, Tipperary."

"French and British alike, declare the Belgian is a hero, in the more generous moods they will swear he is the savior of the situation, and they have made his reputation to his land their favorite result."

With what love the British regard the Belgian soldier is shown in the picture which follows.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

There are some foolish business men who believe in curtailing their advertising because times are depressed, whereas as a matter of fact a dull time is especially the time for brisk advertising. Take the case of the apple crop. The war suddenly demoralized the market. The farmers were not even gathering their apples. The newspaper publishers induced the Dominion Government to undertake advertising the Canadian apples in the interests of the apple growers as an industry. What was the result? The farmers found a sudden demand created and although they may not have made a fortune out of their work yet they got returns instead of a dead loss. This was accomplished within three months. Europe in previous years had taken annually 1,664,165 barrels, as well as 75 per cent of the total production of dried apples. The advertising campaign commenced on October 1st the advertisements setting forth the food value of the Canadian apples containing an intimation that the Department of Trade and Commerce supplied free 209 recipes for using or cooking apples. The officials of that Department commenced to stare when the requests for the booklet came in. They had printed 10,000 copies which in their innocence, they thought would satisfy the people of Canada. But no less than 40,000 were directly applied for by the Canadian people. This of course, did not represent the extent of the direct value of the advertising, because thousands of people were influenced by the advertising who did not ask for the recipes and thought they knew all about cooking apples. It gave the Department of Trade and Commerce a jolt however, and pointed out the way to an avenue of usefulness. But this is not all. It may be said, "Oh, that was getting something for nothing." But was the effect upon the consumption of apples? The apple dealers report to the Department that their sales of Canadian apples this season for domestic consumption were in most localities from two to four times greater than in any previous year. One of the leading co-operative apple growers associations in Ontario was unable to supply the orders from its own stock, and had to rest from others. This money was not directly in circulation in Canada among the people growers and the dealers and demonstrated to the government of Canada a neglected field of public usefulness.—Ex.

"SHOO THE KAISER"

"Everybody's Playing It."

This is the first announcement of the sale in the Bay Chaleur of a game that is bound to become most popular during this winter.

The very name will give you an idea of the nature of the game. The pack consists of thirty-two cards, divided into four suits namely England, France and Russia, known the world over as the Triple Entente, and the fourth none other than our common enemy—Germany. Each card is numbered and as in ordinary card games the high card takes the trick. In the suit of England there is one card called the Navy, on which appears a picture of a British Tar. In the suit of Germany is a card called the Kaiser, with his picture on it. The object of the game is to take every trick you can, keep possession of the Navy, and avoid taking the Kaiser. Every time you take a trick with the Kaiser in it you lose three. When you take the Navy you get five.

In addition to being numbered each card is named according to importance, as follows: General, Colonel, Major, Captain, Lieutenant, Sergeant and Corporal, with the remainder blanks. From start to finish the game is a battle of wits to keep possession of the Navy and make your opponent take the Kaiser. In playing there is abundant opportunity for skill and enough chance to add spice to the game.

In each issue of the Graphic will appear a coupon. Fill this in and send it to the Graphic with forty cents and the game will be sent postpaid. Instructions are included in every pack.

During the long, cold evenings of the winter this game will be played in thousands of Canadian homes, and will afford an abundance of enjoyment at parties, socials, lodges, clubs, etc.

Sent Post Paid upon Receipt of 40 cents.

THE MODERN DINING CAR SERVICE

(Canadian Government Railway Employees Magazine).
Many travellers who patronize dining cars on our through trains scarcely realize as they enter one of these finely equipped coaches and ushered by the uniformed conductor a table spread with snowy linen, a set with the finest of china and silver ware, what an amount of effort and great attention to detail are expended in the desire to give to passengers these material comforts that satiate and exalt the inner man.

The average traveller is apt to get that twenty-five year ago luxury, 15 years ago the conditions of travel as they were, and rode on the reg day coaches, and ate their meals at the station restaurants at various places along the line. Increasing travel demanded something better.

This, so the Buffet Service was introduced on the sleeping and parlor whereby light meals were served passengers on these coaches. But necessity of serving regular meals while in transit soon became imperative, and so the modern dining car evolved.

The dining car of to-day is a thing of elegance, built of the finest materials and finished in the best taste. One costs in the vicinity $25,000 exclusive of furnishings, greengrocers, etc. The Conductor, Chef, second and third cooks, waiters and a pastryman. Who stops to calculate the amount of food, the cost of the food supplies, the unavoidable waste, it will be
