THE SARMATIAN.

Her Arrival in Boston after a Tempestuous Boston, Nov. 30.—The steamer Sarmatian, Capt. Scott of the Allan line, arrived at this port this morning from Glasgow, after a tempestuous voyage of twenty days, having left Glasgow Nov. 10. From the 17th to the 25th she met a series of gales, which were terrific in fierceness, but which, however, did very little damage to the vessel. On the 17th Capt. Scott was at his post on the bridge, when a heavy sea struck sel. On the 17th Capt. Scott was at me post on the bridge, when a heavy sea struck the seaboard side, breaking the rails and throwing the captain down, injuring his back and right leg, necessitating his keeping his stateroom for ten days. The Sarmatian brought five cabin and thirty-two steerage passengers, besides a large miscellaneous

An Unhealthy Mansion.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The executive mansion will not be ready for the president until the latter part of next week. An employee at the mansion says but little idea can be formed of the dilapidated condition of the premises by those not employed there. At the coming session there will be a number of bills introduced providing for the erection of a private dwelling for the president. A plan perfected by Senator Morrill of Vermont, is to duplicate the president's house nearer the Potomac river. Another plan provides for the building of a dwelling on the Meridian hill, a latter than the fourth for upholstering work.
