

NA-NA-KWA

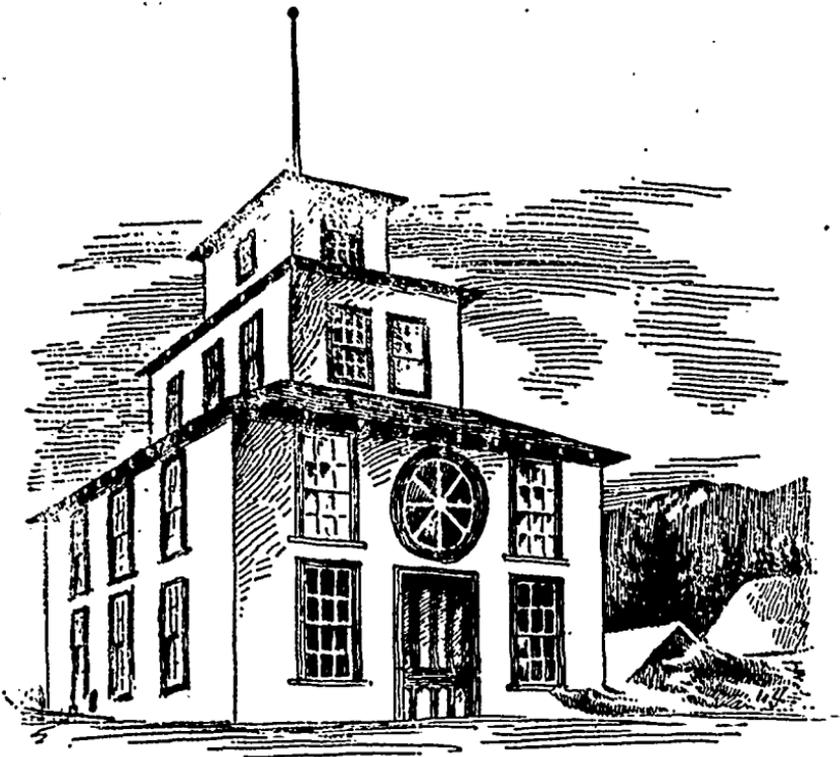

OR

DAWN OF THE NORTHWEST COAST.

. 12.

KITAMAAT B. C.

October 1900.

THE FIRE COMPANY'S HALL KITAMAAT.—(Engraved for Nanakwa).

Eastern people would be somewhat astonished to see a building of the above type, in Indian villages of the Northwest Coast, but such is the case. This structure at Kitamaat indicates two facts,— that the people are trying industriously to help themselves, and they are keeping pace with the advancing civilization of the North land. The hall was built by the Kitamaat soldiers five years ago, and is now the property of the Fire Company. A grand view of the Inlet is obtained from its watch-tower.
