

presented to Mrs. Newman a bouquet of flowers, as a token of the Year's appreciation of her kindness. The Class History was admirably given by Mr. Walker, and a magnificent address was delivered by Mr. Stapleton, who holds the position of Orator in the Year. Mr. Leo Riggs and Mr. McDonald the Minstrel and Bard of the Class, contributed musical and poetical numbers to the programme. The continual buzz of conversation characterized the remaining part of the evening, and an enjoyable social hour was spent. This evening's entertainment initiated Class '02 into the pleasures of the Year Rally, and it is safe to say that the anticipations of none were disappointed.

MOULTON COLLEGE.

MISS PUTNAM, MISS DUNCAN, EDITORS.

THE College re-opened for the New Year on Wednesday, January 4th. The attendance is larger than that of last term, several new students have been enrolled.

The outlook for the next six months is most encouraging; the work has been entered upon with an earnestness and vigor that augurs well for the term. The best spirit possible in regard to the work prevails; an evidence that, more and more, the aim of the College to be one in which the work is of the very highest character, is being realized. A marked feature of this spirit is the earnest individual effort that is made by each student in her work, ample proof of which was given in the satisfactory results of the Christmas examinations. The spirit shown in the literary work is not lacking in the other departments, and in all phases of the life; the class organizations and the various societies are all successfully maintained.

The most interesting feature of this term has been the lecture given by Professor Clark, L.L.D., of Trinity College, on Kingsley's "Water Babies." The lecture sustained in a high degree the superior character of the course of lectures arranged for the year. It is a matter for congratulation that the students have enjoyed the privilege of hearing the most cultured men of the city lecture upon subjects of special interest and profit.
