

Some Impressions of well-known C.R.O. people as they appear to the L.S.

1.
He is second to none—he's supreme,
But he seldom, if ever, is seen,
From publicity's eye
He seems to fight shy.
Can you guess who it is that I mean?
2.
He's the longest thing going in Town,
At the Records he's won some renown.
Still I think that if in size
He continued to rise
'Twould be safer to have him cut down.
3.
He is square and compact and it's clear
To the heart of a child he is dear.
He may always be found
With his little flock round,
And a smile full of kindly good cheer.
4.
Like "Bunny" of cinema fame,
He's cheery and jolly and game,
A big bouncing boy,
A real mother's joy—
Now say, Can you tell me his name?
5.
To the Stenos and Typists well known,
He is found in an orderly home.
To his victims of fear
He can turn a deaf ear,
And a heart that is surely of stone!
6.
He is fair, and his eyes very blue,
So expressive of innocence too.
I wonder what guile
He is hiding the while—
I think he's too good to be true!
7.
He is chubby and round to degree,
Better nourished he couldn't well be.
Yet the spirits he craves
Are just those of the graves.
What a strange contradiction is he!
8.
Our boys have been through it again,
Waging war 'gainst an Armistice pain.
Some call it gastritis
And some meningitis,
The M.O.?—a different name.
9.
These verses express my own views,
If displeasure they cause—then abuse;
The receptacle handy,
Our friend Mr. Candy,
Who censored the whole of my Muse.
