

CHAPTER IV.

Merciful preservation—Arrival at Montreal—Seat of Government—Proposal for a Viceroy—Probable influence of a Vice-Regal Court—Liking of Americans of the higher class for Englishmen of rank—Romish Cathedral—Convents—Hotel Dieu—Maison du bon Pasteur—Nuns in white—Interesting Novice—Polite Lady Superior—Reflections on the system—Hotel Charges—French very much spoken—Church of England Services in that Language—Character of Young Lower Canadians—Charivaris—Fatal results of one—Montreal as a place of residence—Devoted Clergy . . . . . 41

CHAPTER V.

Luggage forwarded to Lachine—Expensive rock excavations—Fear of losing luggage.—Kindness of a fellow-traveller—Beauharnois estate—Prescott—Traces of the rebellion—Mistaken lenity of Conservative Government—Traitors pensioned—Loyalists neglected—Rebel devices—Miraculous eggs—Unfortunate dupes—A restored Traitor's gratitude—Consists in recommending further rebellion—Brockville—Pleasing locality—Lake of the One Thousand Islands—Paradisaical scenery—Gahanoque—Kingston. . . . . 51

CHAPTER VI.

Change of steamers—The Author imposed upon—Hints to future travellers—Possible advantages of a residence near Kingston—Cobourg—Theological seminary.—Expense to students—Advantages of district visiting, &c., enjoyed by them—Half fare only charged to students in steamers—Some tavern-keepers liberal to clergy—Lofty shores of part of Lake Ontario—Peninsula and Bay of Toronto—Supposed Indian derivation of the name—Ferry-boat across the Bay—Peninsula Hotel—Fox-hunting on the ice . . . . . 59