Hotels Will Stay Open. The passage of the local option byiaw in the municipalities surrounding the city will not be attended by any radical change in the present accommodation for the traveling public. In the Township of Markham, where the measure was adopted by a substantial majority at the municipal elections. there are at present seven hotels. With the possible exception of Hughes of Thornhill, these will continue to cater as before to the traveling public. In Unionville, where a wide district is served by the Queen's Hotel, Rogers the proprietor, states that the hotel would be kept open for the accommodation of the traveling public as before.

The Village of Richmond Hill adoptmeeting. There were two applications ed the measure on the distinct understanding that in the event of its passage and the refusal of the local hotelkeepers to keep open their houses, the promoters of the local option bill would furnish the necessary accommodation. Inquiry of the committee in charge of the matter shows that every preparation has been made, and in the event of the present hostelry being closed the temperance element will be prepared to furnish all the accommodation needed.

The members decline to disclose their plans, but evidently have the matter well in hand. On Yonge-street from O'Halloran's Hotel in Deer Park to Aurora there is only one hotel, that of D. B. Birrell at York Mills. On Yongestreet in the same distance it is said that at one time there were beween 25 and 30 hotels. as those which have been shown to be possible this past week in the calamity at San Francisco. What solace, what stay in the midst of trouble and terror of accumulating hor or upon horror could the soul find sive in the unchanging Christ? And what hope could the bereaved and afflicted have in the misst of a destruction as terrible as that of the cities of the plain or of Babylon, when swept with the becom of 'destruction, save in the truth of the Resurrection? "Be satisfied," said the speaker, "with nothing short of the strong, calm faith of Job when he says: 'I know that my Redeemer liveth and that in my flesh I shall see God."

"During the past week we have been brought face to face with one of the greatest calamities of recent times. The inhabitants of a great state have been suddenly startled by the throes of a terrible earthquake, shaking and throwing down buildings, small and great, and otherwise doing great damage to property, in towns and cities, and causing a considerable destruction of human life. And then, to make the situation more terrible in the greatest of the cities affected, a conflagration almost unparalleled in magnitude, has followed the earthquake, and wrought a destruction many times greater still." a destruction many times greater still." So said Rev. J. T. Sunderland, M. A.,

So said Rev. J. T. Sunderland, M. A., in Jarvis-street Unitarian Church yesterday morning.

"A city twice as large as Toronto, and which one week ago was full of life and hope and enterprise and prosperity, to-day is a black smoking ruin, and 300,000 of its people are homeless, while several hundreds have lost their lives." he continued

Its Lessons to Humanity. Many reflections were stirred by such sudden and staggering calamities. One was as to the duty of brotherhood, the duty of doing what we can to rethe duty of doing what we can to relieve those in distress, no matter what may be their creed or nationality, race or condition in life. Then there were other thoughts. Was God responsible for such calamities? Or, even if he allowed them, as he certainly did, was He good? The preacher argued that a great many evils and calamities that come to us in this world come thru our fellow men, or from the fact that we are dependent upon our fellows, and they upon us. He cited such in-He good? The preacher argued that a great/many evils and calamities that come to us in this world come thru our fellow men, or from the fact that we are dependent upon our fellows, and they upon us. He cited such instances as the Chicago fire, the destruction of the City of Johnstone, Pa., years ago. Passengers on board trains did not bring disasters upon themselves; these were brought on by others on whom they were dependent. Would man be better off if there were no such relationshi or dependence? Mankind on the earth could not exist without it. Cut off from one another we are cut off not only from the highest good and the highest blessings of life, but speedily from life itself. It man were to exist on earth at all, of course he had to be either subject to human relations and decendent was near at hand, and the shock experienced in San Francisco was only another evidence of approaching universal destruction.

Not a Judgment.

Strong words of warning against a disposition to draw from the San Francisco calamity the conclusion that the city was being directly punished thru Divine agency were uttered by Rev. A. B. Winchester in Knox Church last night. The speaker termed such conclusions as "most unwarranted." God's purpose in this was not a judgment against a specific civic sin, but to give a warning which applies as much to Toronto as to San Francisco, declared Rev. Mr. Winchester, It would had to be either subject to human re-lations and dependent upon his fellow, as we saw him, or else every man must be isolated from his fellows, with no mutual relations and dependan Man's Responsibility. If the plan of isolation would have produced less evil and more good to the human race than the present plan, then we may charge the Author of the present plan with malevolence. But, if we, even with our short sight, can plainly see that the present plan is not only the best, incomparably the best, but the only one which could have insured either the progress and development, or even the continued existence of the race, then surely we must withdraw our charge and say that God, the great Power, that arranged things as they are, was not only not unwise in so doing, but wise; and not unkind but kind.

A large portion of the evils that came upon man he brought upon himself by his own neglect and wrong-doing. He puts his hand in the fire and is sent plan with malevolence. But, if

He exposes himself to wind and wet, takes violent cold and pays the forfeit with his life. He drinks intoxicating liquor until the vitality of his system is burnt up. He steals and cast in jail. He murders and cast in jail. He murders and is hanged. He is loose in his moral character, and, as a consequence, his sons and daughters grow up rakes and harlots.

The divine right of the king to rule is exploded. God's voice is speaking in the realm of finance. The immense fortunes heapend water mains, provision which every modern city should make as a result. "There is no question but that God in San Francisco as a terrific warning, gregational Church. It was typical of se cities destroyed and obliterated by God in the past because of the pre dominance of sin and wickedness. Like many others this city of the west was lovely in appearance, but in the heart of it dwelt Chinatown, with its awful horrors, and the abodes of foreigners living two and three storeys below the ground, where every evil and licentious practice was indulged in. The speaker believed that God had seen fit to visit the city which tolerated such wickedness. San Francisco was the centre at one time of the great gold rush to Cali-declared Rev. Mr. Winchester, It would be a most dangerous thing if fanatic-ism were to be enocuraged in regardnig every calamity as a special judg-ment of Heaven against a special sin." The speaker referre to the varied reasons given in different quarters for the great conflagration in London in the reign of Charles II., it being severally claimed that it was sent from heaven because of ehe Reformation, because popery was not extinct, because of the fanaticism of churchmen and the revelries of Charles' court, and again it was attributed eo the hypocrisy of the Puritans. "It seemed as if the very elements leagued together to make sport of man's greatest works," he said, in powerfully presenting the uncertainty of earthly possessions and man's absolute impotency in opposing God's ways.

The Hand of Providence. In Parkdale Methodist Church last night the Rev. Dr. Cade discoursed from the subject, "God's Voice in the Earthquake." Every great dispensa-tional change had been heralded or accompanied by some manifestation in nature. On Mount Sinai and at the crucifixion nature was in convulsion. It may be said that the disaster at San Francisco is the result of natural causes. Bu beyond it all is the hand of God. It is a delusion to think that the earth is secure. Between pent-up God's voice is speaking in the realm of finance. The immense fortunes heaped up by trusts and combines will be dissipated. The poor lunatic who a few weeks ago robbed the Crown Bank, like Gaynor and Greene, like Jabez Balfour in the old land, will all get their desserts. San Francisco was not destroyed by reason of its wickednessall cities are wicked.

The response to the appeal for aid would serve to show the warm feeling existing between Canada and the republic to the south.
