To carry out that necessity means that we should not fall behind in building Dreadnoughts, the naval power generally acknowledged to be invincible. Do we wish to be second to every Asiatic power? Surely no! We must build the ships!"

SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE?

(Harper's Weekly.)

"Shall the people rule?" says Bryan.

"That's the question, Billy B.
Calls the bright and burnin' issue in the comin' ballotry.

"Shall the People rule the country, and continue as before
For to say who'll have the latch-key of the swingin' White House door?"

Spoke right up to Mr. Georgie, sassed him squarely to his face,
Took his troops and sent 'em packin' back to Britain in disgrace.
Wouldn't pay his bloomin' taxes, chucked his soldiers in the sea,
And they waved a flag fornenst him sayin' "Don't You Tread on Me!"

Spoke out loud in ninety-six, and back in nineteen-hundred, too.
"We've a sort of notion, Willyum, that we have no use for you.
We don't want you in the White House!" Said it twice before all men, And, bigosh, the signs ain't wantin' that they'll say the same again! Yes, the People will be rulers till the tag-end of all Time. "Tis a million to a doughnut, or a billion

JOHN WAS CALLED DOWN.

WHEN TAFT WAS A POET. (New York Times.)

Very few persons know that Secretary Taft has written poetry. Most people have an idea that a poet is a lean, long-haired creature, who looks as if he had lost his last friend. The genial Republican nominee appears too well fed to be a rider of the steed Pegasus. But —

Once, before the world had heard about Mr. Taft, he made a visit to the home of a favorite aunt in lowa, who knew not of his courtship of the muse. When he had told his beloved relative "how all the folks were" and answered her one hundred and one questions, and dined with especial attention to the fatted calf, he proudly took from his pocket a couple of clippings from the newspaper which had printed his "soul songs." He admits the verses were clever.

The aunt of the future great statesman read them diligently. "do they print "will" she asked simply. "do they print

SOMETHING ABOUT HANBURY- WILLIAMS

Earl Grey's Secretary Has a Record as a Distinguished

Very little is known by the average Canadian of Col. Hanbury-Williams, the Governor-General's secretary, who was knighted on the occasion of the Quebec Tercentenary. A writer signing himself "The Marquise de Fontenoy," who contributes syndicate articles on English notabilities to a number of Canadian papers, has an article about Sir John which may very well be reprinted. The article runs:

His appointment as military secretary to the Governor-General of Canada four years ago was made at the personal instance of the king, who entertains the highest regard for Hanbury-Williams, and who wished to atone for the undeserved slight placed upon him through the cancelling of his nomination to the post of military attache to the English embassy at Paris. The assignment was cancelled at the request of the French government and military authorities, who objected to it in consequence of the fact that the colonel's wife was a Miss Annie Reiss of Manchester, a member of the Hebrew race, though not of the Jewish creed.

It was considered by the authorities at Paris that in view of the Anti-Semitic feeling that still prevailed among military men in France and also in certain political and social circles in Paris—four years ago the anti-Dreyfus fever was still strong—the fact that Mrs. Hanbury-Williams was a Jewess would give rise to difficulties.

King Edward, who, like Emperor Williams was a Jewess would give rise to difficulties.

King Edward, who, like Emperor William, entertains no prejudice whatever with regard to the Jewish race, not only endeavored to atone for the affront by inviting the Hanbury-Williamses to be his guests at Balmoral, but likewise directly interested himself in their future, the colonel's appointment to the staff of the Governor-General of Canada being made, as I have mentioned above, at his suggestion. Sir John Hanbury-Williams is a particulary able officer. He distinguished himself in several of the Egyptian campaigns, as well as in the Burmese and South African wars; was military secretary to Lord Milner throughout a considerable portion of the latter's Lord High Commissionership in South Africa, and was afterwards secretary to the Secretary of State for War. Lady Hanbury-Williams is not only wealthy, but also a tactful and clever woman, who has made hosts of friends in Canada. Sir John has received, in addition to his knighthood, the Star of the Victorian Order, and it is said that the Prince of Wales intimated to him on behalf of his father, the King, that the latter was particularly pleased to bestow the honor in question on so distinguished an afficer.
