

In his Encænia Address, which embodied the Reports of the various Professors and Examiners, the President reported that the number of students has increased to 25, and that harmony existed, and gave evidence that good work has been done throughout the year.

We feel now in a better position to ask people to subscribe to the Endowment Fund, and the work of collecting will again be undertaken very soon.

Through exceptional circumstances the receipts last year were greater than the expenditure; but for the coming year, unless money is promptly given, they must fall several hundred dollars short.

During the year past King's College has lost one of her best and most devoted sons, by the death of the Rev. George W. Hodgson, M.A., who, faithful even to death, bequeathed to the College his large and valuable library, and also left a considerable sum of money, which will revert to the College.

We need only add further that never, probably, has deeper interest been shewn in the College than at the last Encænia, and its friends in Nova Scotia were greatly cheered by the presence and kind words of his Lordship the Metropolitan, who preached the Encænia Sermon.

Respectfully submitted.

F. W. VROOM, M. A.
