PERFORM OPERATION BY LIGHT OF MATCHES

Electricity Fails as Patient is Under Ether and Critical Point Reached

Hartford, Conn., May 31.—Believing 2 o'clock in the morning to be a good time for the operation, the Electric Light Company shut down its plant to make repairs on the dynamo, and that a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital in that city is alive is due only to the steady nerves of three surgeons.

They worked fast and true in the darkness, which was broken only by the continuous lighting of matches and the dull glow of two oil lamps which an orderly detached from waiting automobiles.

The three surgeons were summoned to haste from a dinner at the Hotelropole in this city and dashed away for a midnight, thirty-mile dash, soon after midnight. A delicate operation for an internal constriction had progressed to the critical point when the lights in the operating room went out.

The physician who was administering the ether, noted the patient's pulse in the dark and regulated the flow of the anesthetic in that way.

The patient is resting comfortably and there is no indication of any serious complication as the result of the unusual conditions attending the operation.

DOG'S EYE USED TO CURE BLIND MAN

Small Piece of Animal's Cornea Grafted on the Diseased Membrane

Paris, May 31.—That a person totally blind from cataracts, even from birth, can be made to see by having part of a dog's eye grafted on his own is announced by Dr. Borch, an American oculist here in a paper read before a meeting of the French Ophthalmological Society.

The doctor explained that by blindness from cataracts and from other causes, the cornea, which is the transparent membrane in the front of the eye, becomes opaque, and in such a case the only chance of restoring the sight is to replace the defective cornea by a healthy one.

To do this, Dr. Borch first operates on a dog, lays back from its eye the conjunctive or skin of the eyeball surrounding the cornea, removes a part of the latter and puts it aside in blood serum.

He then performs the same operation on the patient's eye, removing a part of the cornea, and then grafts the skin of the dog's cornea on the patient's cornea. The dog's cornea is then put in position on the human eye and secured with stitches of the finest possible silk, the surrounding skin, which had been laid back, being brought into place over the edge of the cornea and also sutured. The new graft unites with the eye a few days, and by a temporary glass cover to keep it in shape and by injections of the serum to stimulate vitality.

ROBBERS ON ROOF HURL VICTIM TO DEATH

Knock Him Down, Rifle His Pockets, Then Toss Him Down Airshaft

New York, May 31.—Scores of men, women and children saw a man beaten and robbed on the roof of a Harlem flat building, and after a thrilling struggle against seven odds saw his two assailants pitch their victim headlong over the edge of the roof to his death, five stories below.

Women and children screamed and grew hysterical as they looked out of their windows on the tragedy. Two men were arrested late yesterday afternoon charged with the crime. The victim remains unidentified and much mystery surrounds the affair.

Mrs. Joseph Borman, who lives on the top floor of No. 164 East 100th street, saw three men wrestling and striking each other on the roof of a building at No. 165 East Ninety-third street at about 9 o'clock.

She summoned her husband and told him that two of the men were attacking the third. Mr. Borman shouted an alarm and scores of other tenants in that neighborhood rushed to their windows. Many of them saw the men and women called out to the two men to desist in their attack, but their cries were unheeded. The witnesses then saw the aggressors overcome the third man, and while one held him, the other rifled his pockets, they said.

The next instant the man broke loose from them and started to run across the roof. He was weak from his injuries and fairly staggered after going a few feet. The men pounced upon him again, the witnesses declare, and threw him over the edge of the building, down an air shaft.

Mrs. Elizabeth Galloway, the janitress at No. 165 East Ninety-third street, was sweeping at the bottom of the shaft and two of her children were standing at her side. Hearing the commotion, she stopped her labor for the moment and was looking above. She barely had time to get her children out of the way when she saw the body of a man hurtling through the air. The man fell at her feet. Death was instantaneous. Two suspects are under arrest.

SIR WILLIAM GILBERT DIED HERO'S DEATH
London, May 31.—Sir William S. Gilbert, drowned Monday, sacrificed his life to save that of Winifred Emery, the wife of Cyril Maude, the actor.

Second anonymous was rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Plan as you will, as long as you cook with the old time fuel you will have ashes, dust and dirt to contend with. Inexpensive, ingenious methods of dealing with and disposing of them are now being carried out by the time and labor entailed by carrying in kindling and coal. Then it takes time to get the fire under way and all the while fuel is being burned.

But today, all this drudgery and expense are being done away with in many St. John homes where the new gas is being burned.
