The admiralty received to-day an official dispatch from Rear-Admiral Wittsoeft, believed to have been dated from Port Arthur on May 14th, reporting that there has been no figting since the telegraph line was cut, the Japanese ships not having attacked. Everything was well with the Russian squadron.

The dispatch was gratifying to the authorities, not only for the news contained, but because its receipt established the fact that while the telegraph line is severed, a system of communication by means of Chinese runners has been satisfactorily inaugurated.

In order to deliver the Liao Yang dispatches entrusted to him, the runner has to pass through the Japanese lines already thrown across the narrow neck of the peninsula, just above Port Arthur, for the purpose of cutting off all communication between Gen. Kouropatkin and the fortress. The passage of the runner was dangerous, but the task was light compared to what it will be whenthe Japanese forces closely invest Port Nevertheless, the officials express confidence that arrangements have been made to insure the frequent transmission of dispatches which, if captured, are unintelligible to the Japanese, as they are in cipher.

One of the reasons for the desperate attempt of the Russians to get to Port Arthur what is officially called an "ammunition train," has been revealed by information which leaked out to-day. There was little need, it appears, for more ammunition, great quantities being stored in the fortress, but Gen. Stoessel was exceedingly anxious to be provided fortress is the Eagle's Nest, from which much of the surrounding country can be seen, but balloons will facilitate observation. Before the war the Russian authorities loaded on a vessel a complete balloon equipment for Manchuria, but it was captured by the Japanese, who will use it perhaps in their operations against Port Arthur. Recognizing the need of providing Gen. Stoessel with all the requisite instruments with which to conduct the defence of Port Arthur, Gen. Kouropatkin is believed to have sen balloons on the "ammunition train." The
