NEW ROSTAND PLAY FETCHES, $50,000

taneously in New York and PARIS, July 20.—The sensational of the coming theatrical season will be the production of a new play, in verse, by M. Edmond Rostand, with the title "Chanticleer."

Eight years have passed since Madame Bernhardt produced with worldwide success his Napoleonic play "L'Aiglon," and rumors of the new play have been whispered ever since. But poets are notoriously capricious, and M. Rostand, who has no severer critic than himself, was fealous of his reputation as the greatest dramatist of his generation.

reputation as the greatest dramatist of his generation
Now all difficulties have been overcome and MM. Jean Coquelin and Hertz, the managers of the Porte St. Martin Theatre, who are the proud possessors of the world's rights in the play, have received the completed manuscript. For this they have paid the unprecedented price of $50,000 on account of author's royalties.

ccount of author's royalties. THE PLAY UNIQUE.

It is not only in the matter of its price, however, that this play is unique. Its title, "Chanticler," gives an index to its character, but would hardly convey the fact that not a single human being figures in the cast! This is comprised entirely of birds and animals, the ordinary denizens of a farmyard, in which the scene of the play is laid.

kingdom. In spite of the limitations with which he has here surrounded himself. M. Rostand has woven around his fantastic scheme a web of poetry, of drama, and of philosophy which all or drama, and or philosophy which an who have been privileged to hear it unhesitatingly declare to be a unikue piece of dramatic literature—exquisitely written, and ordered with an amazing sense of dramatic effect. The mental hurdles which the dramatist has set up are easy work, how-ever, compared with the physical imof the actors. Not merely have they to impersonate birds—they must be as such. Only the actor's face and voice will be left to him, and in spite of apparent difficulties, every one concerned looks forward to a triumph at the Porte St. Martin in the autumn. As for the English production, a trifle of $25,000 on account of royalties is equired of the manager who would essay it. That fact has not prevented keen competition among the likeliest (and the unlikeliest) actors and managers; and arrangements are practically concluded by which production will be made almost simultaneously with the Parisian premiere in London and New York with two of the best-known English-speaking actors in the princi-pal part. The English version of the play will be made in verse by Louis N. Parker, whose translation of "L'Aiglon" takes rank with the master-pieces of translation.
