evidently well pleased with the reorganization which had been effected. In an interview given yesterday afternoon before leaving he briefly reviewed what had been accomplished; declined to discuss in any detail the criticisms which had been made as to the high prices allowed to the manufacturers in Canada hitherto; prophesied an immense stimulus to the whole munitions industry in Canada in the near future, and referred to very large orders which were coming from Great Britain.

For Canada, he said, the estimated value of the total war orders either already placed or coming was close to half a billion, or over sixty dollars per head of population. These orders, with the great harvest of this year, should spell industrial prosperity for the Dominion for some time to come.

Away at Bexley Heath.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—A cablegram
Saturday from Sir Goerge Perley, in London, to Sir Robert Borden announced the death of Sir Charles Tupper, which occurred in the morning at Bexley Heath. The official cablegram reads:

"Sir Charles Tupper died peacefully this morning."

Charles Stewart Tupper of Winnipeg, son of the late James Stewart
Tupper, and grandson of the late Sir
Charles, succeeds to the Baronetcy.
He is a son-in-law of Dr. Charles Morse, Registrar of the Exchequer Court of Ottawa, and is about to leave for the front, having obtained a commission in the Cameron Highlanders.

The last of the Fathers of Confed.

The last of the Fathers of Confederation will be brought to the land he loved so well, and to which he gave all his energy, intellect, and enterprise. Sir Charles Tupper will sleep his last sleep in Amherst, his birthplace, the scene of his many political battles and victories. To Cumberland County will be brought "the war horse of Cumberland."

Britain will pay a last tribute to its greatest imperialist of the overseas dominions. A warship will be sent to convey the remains of the great statesman to Hallfax. Twenty years ago the battleship "Blenheim" performed a similar duty when the body of Sir John Thompson was brought from London to the same city.
