

Snatched From The Rails.

Facing danger to save life is always heroic, but to save life as a certain brakeman lately did it requires not only bravery, but rapid and intelligent action. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat prints a thrilling account of an adventure on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. The train was late and heavily loaded, and on a long down grade the engineer, to make up for lost time, "turned her loose", and the cars flew over the hill at a tremendous speed.

About half-way down the grade Brakeman Rosenbrook's pipe went out, and he went forward to the locomotive to get a light. On that little incident hung the life of a two year old baby. As the brakeman entered the cab, the engineer said to the fireman:

"What's on the track ahead, Bill?"
"Looks like a man sitting on the rail," answered Bill. "Guess he'll move when we whistle for the crossing."

The heavy train rushed on, and a moment later the whistle sounded. Then the bundle moved, but instead of getting off the track, it stepped right between the rails and calmly waited.

"It's a baby!" groaned the engineer, as he shut off steam and called for brakes. But no power could stop that train in that short distance. The fireman was speechless; the engineer, with gray face and staring eyes, was sounding his whistle, hoping to scare the infant from the track.

Suddenly the window was thrown open, and Brakeman Rosenbrook crept out and along the narrow running-board. Clinging to the hand-rail with one hand he made his way along the side of the swaying locomotive, and in a moment had reached the pilot.

The shrill danger-signal, sounding continuously, brought a woman to the door of a small farm-house near the track. With a scream she started toward her baby. But only the one grab which Rosenbrook would have time to make stood between the child and death; and the shock of that grab might throw the man from the pilot and cost him his own life.

"When within a few yards of the little girl," says the brakeman, "I saw her lift her face and look at me. Her blue eyes were troubled; something was wrong, but she did not know what it was."

The moment arrived. The locomotive was upon the child, when, with one grasp, Rosenbrook swept the little girl from her feet and jerked her clear of the track. So great was the shock that the man was thrown backward against the pilot. With a great effort he steadied himself and held on to Alice. A hundred yards farther on the heavy train came to a standstill, and Rosenbrook stepped from the pilot. The baby had not uttered a cry, but when her rescuer stood on firm ground she whispered: "My Mamma wants me."

At the same moment the mother rushed up and clasped the little girl to her heart. The engineer and the conductor came running forward and shook Rosenbrook's hands incoherently murmuring all sorts of promises about "reporting to head."

But Rosenbrook simply begged a match, lighted his pipe, climbed to the top of the train and signaled to go ahead.

It Came Back.

Little Davey was forever asking questions. "You'd better keep still or something will happen to you," his tired mother finally told him one night. "Curiosity once killed a cat, you know."

Davey was so impressed with this that he kept silent for three minutes. Then: "Say, Mother, what was it the cat wanted to know?"

"Your Electric Belt has made a man of me. It has overcome my weakness and improved my general health and strength 100 per cent," writes one of my patients, after two months' use of my appliance. I am accumulating such volumes of this evidence that I intend to pound away until I get the truth regarding electricity in the hands of every suffering man and woman.

What's the use in carrying your tale of woe to one doctor and another? They've all got different theories about your ailments. What's the use experimenting? Haven't you had enough of it? Do you really think drugging of any description will help you? No doubt your doctor has done all he can for you, but if it's fresh vitality, new energy that your system requires, your doctor can't put this into you by dosing your stomach. Talk Electricity to him, he'll give you that possibly, but not in the right form; not in the right way. You can't get true invigoration, permanent help from a doctor's battery or machine.

Use my Belt, that's the right method, the up-to-date system of applying this great curative, vitalizing power to your body.
