No Harm Done.—Her friends had asked their young hostess to play for them, and she was performing a difficult selection from Wagner. In the midst of it she suddenly stopped in confusion.

"What's the matter?" asked one of the visitors.

"I—I struck a false note," faltered the performer.

"Well, what of it?" cried another guest. "Go ahead. Nobody but Wagner would ever know it, and he's dead."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Hadn't Seen It All.—It all happened in the smokeroom of one of the liners as she was approaching Liverpool. He had during the voyage freely given evidences of his immense importance, but on this occasion he even triumphed over his former exploits. "Yes, gentlemen, I may fairly say that I have seen about all worth seeing in the civilized world. I have visited the Holy Land; I have been to Jerusalem, Rome, Athens, Paris, Vienna. I have seen the finest pictures, the grandest natural views, the greatest sculptures, the—" Just at that moment a voice broke in: "Say, mister, have you ever had the D. T.'s?" "No, sir, I am proud to say I have not," he answered in a shocked voice. "But why?" "Well, then, all I can say is, you have seen nowt."

A Double Fumble.—"Who was that tough-looking chap I saw you with to-day, Hicks?"

"Be careful, Parker! That was my twin brother."

"By Jove, old chap, forgive me! I ought to have known."—Boston Transcript.

The Keat Explained.—The little agricultural village had been billed with "Lecture on Keats" for over a fortnight. The evening arrived at length, bringing the lecturer ready to discourse on the poet. The advertised chairman, taken ill at the last moment, was replaced by a local farmer. This worthy introduced the lecturer and terminated his remarks by saying:

"And now, my friends, we shall soon all know what I personally have often wondered—what are Keats?"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Song of Europe.

Sing a song of Europe,
Highly civilized.
Four-and-twenty nations
Wholly hypnotized.
When the battles open
The bullets start to sing.
Isn't that a silly way
To act for any king?

The kings are in the background
Issuing commands.
The queens are in the parlor
Per etiquette's demands.
The bankers in the counting-house
Are busy multiplying.
The common people at the front
Are doing all the dying.

—Life.

A Case of Gravity.—The latest Boston story is about a small child who fell out of a window. A kind-hearted lady came hurrying up with the anxious question, "Dear, dear! How did you fall?"

The child looked up at the questioner and replied, in a voice choked with sobs, "Vertically, ma'am."—Tit-Bits.

A Cheerful Outlook.—Lady (engaging a page boy)—"Well, how soon can you come?"

Page (readily)—"At once, mum." Lady—"But surely your present mistress won't like that."

Page (brightly)—"Oh, yes, she will, mum! She'll be only too glad to get rid of me."—London Opinion.

Are There Others?—Madge—"You shouldn't say he's a confirmed bachelor unless you know."

Marjorie—"But I do know; I confirmed him."—New York Times.

Argument Closed.—Jackson and Johnson are not now on speaking terms. It all arose as the result of an argument which required some mental calculation.

"I tell you," said Jackson, "that you are altogether wrong in your conclusions."

"Pardon me, but I am not," replied Johnson.

"Didn't I go to school, stupid?" almost roared his opponent.

"Yes," was the calm reply, "and you came back stupid."—Tit-Bits.

You can't rub me off the map! My name wouldn't be Blaisdell 7200 if I let you do that. I am indelible and I make 7 copies—some pencil, believe me
