Sullivan was making capital out of that timber deal.

I am afraid that the sidewalk contractors will think that the city has a Savage inspector.

I wouldn't like to work in Ottawa, said Faithful Fred. It must be so easy to get fired there.

Cap Sullivan we can never trust, though they may speak before parliamentary commissions.

The old advice aim higher is recalled. Some Ames are all right as long as stocks are high, but afterwards, oh my.

A HOT ONE.

Instead of saying "Go to Hades" the boys now say "Go to Ottawa," that is the hottest place now known.

Providence must have been away on a visit Sunday. While that afternoon showers were deluging the good people who stayed in town for church, those who went out to Mitchell's bay (for church) never got a drop. That is, a drop of rain. I don't know of other drops.

Notice—Dear Satellite.—The airy stupidity of the above sounds so like your own that people will never know but it's yours. So just tack your name to it and let it shine.

METEOR.

Dear Satellite.—The subjoined is too strong, too brilliant and too Tory for a feeble minded Grit like yourself to understand or appreciate.

An old maxim of innocent till he is proven guilty.

Chancellor Boyd has revised this to read in cases of Grit political outbursts:

"A man is innocent, not only till he is proven guilty, but forever afterwards" and the more guilty he is proven, the more innocent he is."

JOKE ON 'EM

The firemen have a good joke on Watchman Coyle—or rather Coyle has a good joke on two of the firemen.

Last evening about 12 o'clock Coyle, who was in the tower, saw a light moving through Taylor's new flour mill. He at once suspected that burglars were in the mill and he reported it so to the Chief. The Chief and fireman Matt. Side then started out on a little detective duty and when they arrived at the mill they found that it was only the night watchman making his usual rounds in the mill with a lantern. They returned to the hall thoroughly disgusted with Coyle and his burglars.
