BUSINESS EDUCATION

Of all the useful acquisitions to a man of the world we know of none preferable to a thorough business education. It is essential to all. Its advantages are recognized on all sides, and the possessor of it, who, at the same time, is honest, industrious and persevering, cannot fail to succeed in whatever occupation he may see fit to engage. It is of importance, therefore, that every young man who contemplates embarking in business life, should have a thorough and satisfactory training in the principles that govern the various transactions of business. Young men, who desire a proper business training, can readily acquire the useful information at

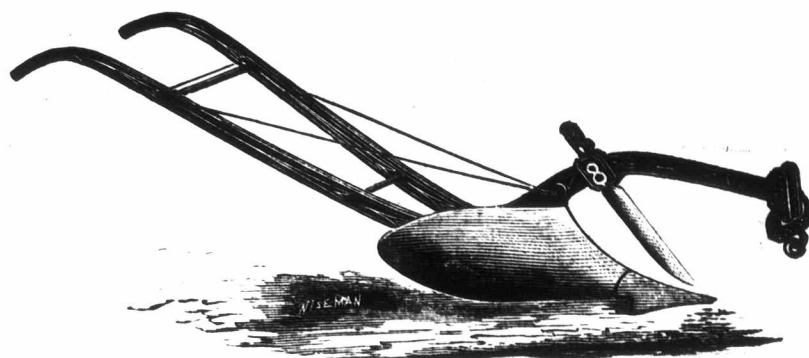

Day's Commercial College,

TORONTO, under the management of Mr. Day, an experienced accountant, who has been very successful in this department of education, as evidenced by the well-tried proficiency of Mr. Day's graduates for many years past, and the commendations of merchants and employers in all parts of the country. For terms, address,

MR. JAS. E. DAY, Accountant,
