C. H. BORDEN.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., APRIL 20, 1900

Local and Provincial.

The Kings Co. Board of Trade meets on Wednesday next at the Court House, Kentville.

It is reported that Rev. Canon Brock, rector of Kentville, has tendered his resignation which is to take effect June 30th.

Rev. J. E. Dunkin, pastor of the Methodist church, exchanged on Sunday last with Rev. Jos. Goss, of Aylesford.

Mr. C. H. Borden, the enterprising general merchandise man is having his store newly painted, which adds much to its appearance.

At Kentville—Flat 6 rooms on corner opposite Baptist church. A. V. PINCO.

With every pound package of Union Brand Tea the purchaser has a chance of getting one of the hundred and twenty-five cash premiums.

The closing exercises in connection with the School of Agriculture are to be held in College Hall on Thursday evening next, April 26th, beginning at 8 o'clock. All are invited.

Room Paper, satin finished, at 4c per roll at WOLFVILLE BOOK STORE.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Elliot Smith, leave this afternoon for Halifax, where they will embark on the N. W. Allen Line Steamer Tropic for Europe. They will be absent two or three months and will visit the Paris Exposition.

We publish this week another excellent article from the pen of Prof. Sewer on "How can we interest the boys in farm work?" The subject is an important one and we commend the article to our readers for careful perusal.

Bicycle! Remember the Massey Harris and Cleveland are the best. For sale at WOLFVILLE BOOK STORE.

We have been informed by the Wolfville Coal and Lumber Co. that they have during the past week been advised of another increase in the price of coal at the Springfield mines. This makes in all an advance of one dollar per ton.

Room Paper! Fine 8-10 in. Flat-head Paper with matched Borders only 5c and 6c per roll at WOLFVILLE BOOK STORE.

Mr. W. C. Hill sent to our office on Tuesday a number of Greenstein apples, grown in his fine orchard in Billtown, which for size, color and flavor, would be hard to beat. Their taste of preservation was truly remarkable in what is known as an early autumn variety, the fruit being as ripe and solid and delicious in flavor as when picked from the tree. Truly Kings is the home of the Greenstein.

Miss Helen Wetmore, the singer, made an excellent impression by the freshness and sweetness of her voice and the good taste of her selection. Her rendering of "Dell Aquas," "Chanson Provencale" was marked by sympathetic appreciation of the sentiment of the song and a good French pronunciation. —Columbus, Ohio, Dispatch.

Miss Wetmore is soprano with the Bononia Quartette Club, playing in College Hall Wednesday, May 2nd.

How Can We Interest the Boys in Farm Work?

The fact that the time is drawing near for the annual immigration of young men from the farms of our province to the cities of the United States may well lead us to consider whether there is nothing which can be done to check this exodus. It is no doubt true, as some one has said, that we are building up a great nation to the south of us, and this may be very gratifying in its way, yet, "charity begins at home" (or ought to) and I firmly believe this annual exodus is one of the greatest problems before us to-day.

The question of why farm life is not more attractive to boys is about as a par with the one "Why doesn't farming pay?" and perhaps the immediate cause will not be the same in any two cases. Yet there are a few underlying principles governing this, just as we find underlying principles in farm practice, and the application of these principles must be varied to suit the individual needs. I believe that one very important way in which farm life may be made more attractive to boys is to make the farm itself more attractive.

I know that boys are not, as a rule, the most orderly beings in the world, yet there are few boys who do not appreciate the difference between an orderly, well-kept farm and the opposite. True, they may not be able to tell just what the difference is, but they realize it nevertheless. The man who allows his pigs to investigate his garden at their pleasure; whose front yard is adorned by a calf or two browsing upon the weeds growing there; while the wires on his pasture fence are so loose that his cows walk serenely into his neighbor's cornfield, must not complain if the boys go through the fence also.

Another thing which will encourage boys to remain on the farm is to allow them to earn some money for themselves or rather to pay them some of the money that they do earn, and it is along this line that I wish to make a suggestion to the farmers of Nova Scotia.

I would suggest that in all the fruit-growing districts of the Province the farmers should allow their sons to choose one tree in the orchard, the fruit from which they shall be allowed to have for their very own, to dispose of as they see fit and spend the proceeds as they like. And let the boys choose the tree for themselves, don't give them some old seedling tree which seldom bears fruit, and then such as in only fit for cider, and poor cider at that. Allow the boys to take full charge of this tree and perform all the operations necessary, pruning, spraying and cultivating it, and you will find that you can give them a stronger liking for orcharding than by any other method you can adopt. I am so firmly convinced that this is a fact that I want to do what I can to help it; therefore, if little I can to help it, I will endeavor to give him the desired information or to secure it for him. And those farmers who do not live within any of our fruit districts I would urge to go and do as near "like-wise" as they can. Give the boys something for their own and encourage them to do the best they can to make it a profitable venture.

I do not wish anyone to infer, from what I have said, that I believe the fathers in the past have not done their duty by their sons. Perhaps they have; perhaps they have done all that could reasonably be expected of them to encourage the boys to stay on the farm, though I am inclined to feel that there has been too much of that form of encouragement which consists in giving the boy a pig which becomes his father's hog. But, however this may be, let every father make an attempt to encourage his son to stay on the farm, both financially and otherwise, and I believe that the result can be for the best interests of this fair province of ours, the finest bit of country that the sun shines on to-day.
