Ir Geo Morris, of Guelph, was visited friends in the circular town the week.

The Donaldson, of Sarnis, was visited.

Key Mr Richardson and the Doctor drove past, and John's humorsome phiz had more than its usual fun in it. Shortly after the close of the poll, and when Proudfoot's election was assured, Sheehan hove in sight, and remarked to the reeze in his own persuasive style, "Misther Proudfut; shure appayrinces war agin me today, so they wor; but, Misther Proudfut, appayrinces is often desaitful." And those who remembered seeing John driven in state by the Doctor in the foremon, joined in the laugh at the witty sally of the jovial Hibernian.

THE CAMEL AND THE DEACON.

The nominations now are made The candidates are ready, The working pipes are now all laid. The veters may get heady; So we must hustle round, you know, And every vote be seekin'; Get up and be a hustler. Said the Camel to the Deacon

I don't think that would be the thing-You know it might miscarry, And then it's "in the soup" I'd be. And Proudfoot mightn't tarry; He'd jump on me with both his feet And do what any man will, He'd slit my wizand, very neat,

Said the Deacon to the Camel. Now Deacon, have you lost your head, Or are you only funning? That you're afraid if you're found out That Proudfoot would go gunning. And lift your scalp off from your head,

All gory and all reekin'; I thought of sterner stuff you're made Said the Camel to the Deacon. Oh! Camel bold, you've got me cold, When thus you do upbraid me; It's mighty sudden, I'll take hold,

Now that you'll not gainsaid be. Remember that in days of yore-And 'Eighty-seven can tell-Round brave Kintail I made them sore Said the Deacon to the Camel.

With that they both bent down to work, From door to door they hurried, And not one was allowed to shirk-Each Tory voté was worried; And none were to their judgement left.
And none allowed to weaken, You've got to vote, or we'll be cleft, Said the Camel and the Deacon.

Election day it came and went; At 5 o'clock the poll closed, The Camel to the Deacon sent, But found the vote was foreclosed. For Smith and Proudfoot on that night Had heard full more than one tell Of the little game to win the fight, By the Deacon and the Camel rich reeveships was the feature in town. It was thought that at any rate the reeve as well as the mayor would be tions what we cannot now express in reeve as well as the mayor would be elected by acclamation, but early in the season His Honor of Keewatin, with a few chosen friends, quietly organized opposition to Mr Proudfoot, and at the proper time Dr Whitely was trotted up to the judges' stand to take part in the race. To this The Signal would not object if the candidates were allowed to run on their merits; but a systematic effort was made at the last minute, when effort was made at the last minute, when cept as a token of love from all of us, effort was made at the last minute, when no chance for rebuttal was possible, to handicap Mr Proudfoot by the publication and dissemination of false and misleading allegations against them.
