

Blood Poisoning

Mrs. Mary E. O'Fallon, a very intelligent lady of Fiqua, Ohio, was poisoned while assisting physicians at an autopsy 5 years ago, and soon terrible ulcers broke out on her head, arms, tongue and throat. Her hair all came out. Her husband spent hundreds of dollars without any benefit. She weighed but 73 pounds, and saw no prospect of help. At last she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and at once improved; could soon get out of bed and walk. She says, "I became perfectly cured by and am now a well woman. I weigh 128 pounds, eat well and do the work for a large family. My case seems a wonderful recovery and physicians look at me in astonishment, as almost like one raised from the dead."

HOOD'S PILLS should be in every family medicine chest. Once used, always preferred.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE WORLD. The match between James Wyllie, the "Herd Laddie," and James Ferrie, Coaldyke, the champion of Scotland, was commenced in Glasgow on the 7th inst. in presence of a large number of spectators. Ferrie won the choice of men, and electing to play the black, started with a Kelso game. It was drawn, as was likewise the return game. Ferrie then formed another Kelso opening, the result also being a draw. The fourth game he succeeded in winning. The succeeding five games were all drawn, but in the tenth Ferrie was again victorious. The eleventh game was won by Wyllie and the thirteenth by Ferrie, after which there was nothing but draws until the 24th game, which Wyllie won. This was at the close of the sixth day of play, and left the score—Ferrie, 3; Wyllie, 2; drawn, 19.

The Jury in the Women's P. P. A. Scandal Fall Out.

Afraid of Damaging the Reputation of Both Parties.

Miss Marron Wept—Clendennan in the Box—Denies All Impropriety—His Daughter's Evidence—The Judge Advised a Settlement.

TORONTO, April 29.—Yesterday morning the slender suit of Miss Rebecca Marron vs. Mrs. Agnes C. Youmans, president of the Women's P. P. A., was resumed. Defendant called Mrs. Mary Bruce, who swore that Mrs. Shepherd admitted at a secret meeting of the society that she was wrong about what Mrs. Youmans had told her in regard to Miss Marron's alleged immoral life in Buffalo.

MRS. CLENDENNAN IN COURT. Mrs. Clendennan, to whose evidence so much interest is attached, came into court unaccompanied and took a seat in front of the prisoners' dock. She was called to the stand by Counsel Johnston, but Judge MacMahon did not allow her to give evidence until he had made another attempt to bring the suit to a peaceable close.

HIS LORDSHIP'S ADVICE. "It might be well, even at this eleventh hour, to make another effort to bring these parties together," said his lordship to the opposing counsel. Of course after this witness has given her evidence it will be useless to attempt to heal the breach. "There seems to be a wish on the part of the plaintiff to exact the pound of flesh," said Mr. Johnston.

"Men could come to some agreement in a matter of this kind, and I cannot see why women should be so relentless."

FORGOTTEN ALL CHRISTIAN CHARITY. "Can not a little Christian charity be shown, or have things come to such a pass that all this is obliterated?"

"All that seems to have been forgotten," returned Mr. Johnston. I have used every lawful and honorable means to effect a settlement, but all to no end."

"There has evidently been a misunderstanding, and if that could be removed there might be some reconciliation," urged his lordship, who seemed very unwilling that the case should go on.

THEY TRY TO SETTLE IT. Counsel Johnston and Gallagher held a long consultation, in which it is understood that Mrs. Youmans' counsel made an offer to settle the case, each party paying their own costs and the defendants to agree that the insinuations about Miss Marron should not be repeated. This offer was not accepted by Miss Marron, and the lawyer reported to his lordship that they were unable to agree.

Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell and Miss Helen Byington, a sister of the defendant, corroborated Mrs. Brown's evidence in regard to Mrs. Shepherd's words at the lodge meeting. Mrs. Clendennan was then put on the stand and denied in toto every important point that Miss Marron had made.

SHE CLENDENNAN'S STORY. She said that she had been separated from her husband by his attentions to Miss Marron. She saw him come out of Miss Marron's room at 12 o'clock on the night of Sept. 1, 1891. She asked him about it, but did not receive an explanation that satisfied her. On Halloween night Miss Marron and Mrs. Clendennan changed rooms.

The witness woke up in the middle of the night and went into her husband's room. He was not there, and she walked to Miss Marron's room where she found her husband asleep in the bed which Miss Marron and her 10-year-old daughter May also occupied. She put her hand on her husband's shoulder and he could not answer her question.

A BAD MAN FOR FIFTEEN YEARS. Miss Marron declared to her that she had been asleep all the time and she was aware of Mr. Clendennan's presence. She called God to witness the truth of her statement. Mr. Clendennan had told her that he had been a bad man for fifteen years and that he had been saving himself for the last two years. She was aware of his presence and he had imposed on her.

MISS MARRON AFTERWARDS. She said that she had been separated from her husband by his attentions to Miss Marron. She saw him come out of Miss Marron's room at 12 o'clock on the night of Sept. 1, 1891. She asked him about it, but did not receive an explanation that satisfied her. On Halloween night Miss Marron and Mrs. Clendennan changed rooms.

man did not have the slightest effect on her statements. Mrs. Clendennan said that Rebbe told her it was none of her business that Mr. C. was in her (Rebbe's) room. She said that she told her husband it was very improper to keep Miss Marron in the house, but he insisted upon it, and said he would leave it if she did not remain.

WHAT MAY SAW. May Clendennan, a daughter, 13 years of age, the next witness, said she and Miss Marron and her father slept in the same bed on that Halloween night in '91. She saw her mother going out of the room and her father getting out of the bed.

Charles Clendennan, the eldest child, swore that he remembered the Halloween night. He had a talk with his father, whom he called "Mr. Clendennan," and he practically admitted the above occurrence. He denied that he told a Mrs. Miller, where he and his father boarded, after the separation of the parents, that his mother told him the bedroom story, and he didn't believe it.

AS THE NURSE VIEWS IT. Mrs. Hume, who nursed Mrs. C., swore that Miss Marron would sit up till 1 or 2 o'clock till Mr. C. came home. "They were quite familiar and too friendly; his wife was treated very coolly. Miss Marron told me Mrs. Clendennan was jealous of her, and I told her the quicker she left the house the better."

MR. CLENDENNAN'S SIDE OF IT. Mr. Daniel W. Clendennan was the next witness. He detailed a number of incidents about the affair. His wife upbraided him for going into Rebbe's room; he thought his wife was there; "he accused Miss Marron of ruining an innocent man," he said. He defended Rebbe, because it wasn't true. After that he and his wife got along together better than before for a while. He moved to Fern Hill because he had a vacant house there; his wife wanted a deed of that property, and she objected to moving there because he didn't give it.

"What was the cause of your separation?" "It began the day we were married and kept widening; we drifted apart foolishly; it was the fault of other people more than ours, and it got bad and couldn't be helped."

To Mr. Johnston he said, referring to the bedroom affair, that the room was dark, he was just getting in when his wife came in with a light, and he saw he had mistaken the room.

"You never made such a mistake before?" "No; not like that."

"And you have not made one like it since?" "No; I have not."

Some clever fencing between counsel and witness followed. Counsel had occasion to ask witness if he carried the note containing the words, "Webb's own, own dear," between the leaves of a Testament in his vest pocket. Witness answered, "A Testament or a memorandum book."

Q.—It would not matter much which it was? A.—Perhaps as much as would to you.

Q.—You believe in the Test? Yes! Perhaps a great deal more than who profess a great deal.

Q.—The "Webb's own, own dear" admitted that he had stolen the business for two months.

Q.—Did you ever see him? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you see him leaving the house then Miss?

Q.—What's your answer to that? A.—Another? Witness.
