Contradictory Speeches On the New Tariff by Opposition Members.

Ottawa, April 29.-In the House yesterday, Mr. Davin brought up the dismissal of Mrs. McManus, the postmistress at Northfield, B. C., and for an hour the House talked in a very heated fashion about the affair. Mr. Davin accused the Postmaster-General of removing Mrs. McManus for political reasons, and of treating his (Mr. Davin's) complaint with bru-

Mr. Foster, Sir Charles Tupper the younger, Mr. Osler and Mr. Quinn in turn took a fling at the Postmaster-General's action. They gave Mrs. McManus and her late husband a good character, intended to overcome the official statement of the inspector that the postmistress had been overbear-splendid attractions, and we predict a ing. To this Mr. McInnes made an answer showing what is meant by "overbearing" in British Columbia. He told how Mrs. McManus had enforced her views as to how the public should behave in the Northfield postoffice "with a six-shooter in her fist." A vision rose up before members of the scene, and they roared with laughter. The Queen's writ may be all right in the effete east, but it is not in it with Mrs. McManus' six-shooter as a

Mr. Richardson read Kipling's poem. The Liberals cheered when he read the strong lines: "A nation spoke to a nation. A queen sent word to a thone;

Mr. Richardson, continuing, made an excellent speech from the point of view of the Northwest, showing the necessity of a vigorous policy for the development of the country. It might, he held, be the part of wisdom to deal in a special way with Manitoba, even to the extent cessary of giving it a special tariff. Five thousand happy, contented set-tlers added to its population would be better than a million dollars spent in other ways; for contented settlers ould attract others.
