LONDON, TUESDAY, MAY 2.

Canada's Sentinels of Health and the Newcomers.

New settlers are trooping into Canada from the other side of the Atlantic at the rate of 4,000 a week, and before May is very far advanced the immigration officials say there will be over 5,000 arriving weekly at Atlantic ports.

This is a phenomenal change from the days prior to 1896, when the numbers arriving averaged only a few hundreds a week. The revolution has not been brought about without much hard work upon the part of the Minister of the Interior, and his staff in this country, and in Europe. There has, indeed, been most systematic efforts to secure new settlers—the best possible men and women ready and willing to go on the land and make a living—and we have in the last few years been beginning to reap great and abiding benefits from the new order of things.

Through the preferential tariff in favor of Great Britain, through the aid given to the motherland by Canada in the struggle to secure British fair play for our brethren in South Africa, and by means of a system of advertising that has been universally commended, Canada and her resources are now known as was never the case before. A few years ago the average schoolboy in Great Britain knew no more and no less about Canada than about Austria-Hungary and the South American republics. So the Canadian Government introduced a text-book demonstrating the extent of territory and natural resources of the Dominion, and hung 25,000 attractive maps of this country on the walls of British schools. Then the address of virtually every farmer and farm laborer throughout the three kingdoms was obtained, and a newspaper setting forth the attractions of the Dominion mailed to every person.

We are now reaping the fruit of this intelligent immigration policy, which has been applied to the United States as well, and the heavy influx of English-speakers from the United Kingdom and the republic is the best proof of the effectiveness of the labors of the Dominion Government in this regard.

Canadians desire that every facility shall be given to men of the English-speaking race, more especially to become settlers in this auxiliary British nation, and it must be reassuring, therefore, to find that the increased immigration is so largely made up of our kith and kin. Of the immigrants who crossed the Atlantic to Canada last year, for example, one-half were British, whereas of the immigrants who landed in the United States, only one-fifth were of British birth. To settle there, the proportion was one British to every ten immigrants from the continent of Europe. And while our newcomers from the continent were made up, in great measure, of people of the farming class from central and northern Europe—just the hardy, orderly settlers that we need—a very large proportion of the immigrants into the United States were of the southern nationalities, who have not in the past shown very much disposition to go on the soil, but have crowded into the great cities, adding to the complex problems with which the neighboring republic has to deal.

There was some criticism in Parliament the other day about the newcomers, and fears were expressed lest in the hurry to receive and send them west to their new homes on the vacant prairie lands, unsuitable immigrants might be allowed to slip through. Some of the critics even make the suggestion that the Canadian immigration act, in so far as inspection is concerned, is much less effective in keeping out objectionable newcomers than the United States law. That is not our information, and we believe that under Dr. Bryce, the chief medical officer, formerly a valued member of the Ontario Board of Health, the medical inspection of immigrants is about as effective as it can well be. Arrived at the port of debarkation, there is only one exit from the ship, through which immigrants can land. They pass into the examining room, where, under a large window with a strong light, the medical man examines every man, woman and child for traces of any curable or incurable disease, or bodily or mental defect. The incurable or defective are at once placed in suitable quarters, where they are detained till the vessel starts on her return journey, when they are dispatched back to Europe, at the expense of the shipowners. A knowledge that such a disposition will be made of unsuitable immigrants has made the shipping companies very careful as to whom they sell tickets. If the immigrant is merely suffering from a curable trouble, he is placed in a specially fitted detention hospital, where he must remain till the physician in charge gives him a certificate of good health.

But the immigrant has to pass a further examination after he is through with the doctors. He must prove to the civil officials that he is neither a pauper, nor one of the criminal class, and that he is possessed of sufficient means to prevent his becoming a burden on the community. Then only can he start off for the place he has chosen as his new home.

Our information is that the records of the respective departments of immigration prove that the inspection of immigrants is more thorough at Canadian ports than at United States landing places, and that the statistics regarding deportations prove that the rejection of unsuitable persons on the Dominion borders is more effective than at the entrance places to the neighboring republic.

If our representatives in Parliament have any misgivings on this score, let them have Dr. Bryce, the chief medical officer, summoned before the parliamentary committee dealing with these matters. We believe he will be able to make a most creditable showing for Canada in the matter of the administration of the immigration act at the various ports in Canada.

Smallpox is not nearly so prevalent nor so fatal as tuberculosis. Yet the people are very much afraid of the former disease and take every means to prevent its spread, while the latter is looked upon with complacency.

Those who are inclined to the belief that the Japanese naval commander is unprepared because so far he has not shown his hand, are likely to be undeceived. Togo is likely to pounce down upon the Russian fleet when it is least expecting the onslaught. And then there will be the naval battle of the century.

Old world statesmen and newspaper men, who are "nagging" at Canada because she will not adopt their view of this country, and in Europe. There has, indeed, been most systematic efforts to secure new settlers—the best possible men and women ready and willing to go on the land and make a living—and we have in the last few years been beginning to reap great and abiding benefits from the new order of things.

The Minister of Education has promised to lay down a concrete pavement at the expense of the provincial taxpayers on one of Ottawa's streets, which passes the Normal School. London aldermen should remember this generosity to the capital when next pavement is required on the streets passing the Normal School in this city. There must be no discrimination.

There is not so much wrong with the systems of education in the several provinces as there is in the way they are managed. You cannot get good results from the work of incapable trustees, who have the cheapest possible teacher and claim credit for the economy? The people themselves can alone apply a remedy.

Not a man in the vast constituency of Edmonton, N. W. T., lifted up his voice against the Government Northwest bills in the late bye-election. That is the kind of a "seether with excitement" that this constituency is. It is typical of the other parliamentary divisions of the Northwest. What nonsense, then, to say that the Northwest, which is most vitally affected, is against the Government on the issues raised in the autonomy bills.

Lord Grey promises to be the most versatile orator among all Canada's governors-general since the days of Lord Dufferin. He has been addressing all sorts and conditions of men in Toronto, with a freedom, fluency and finish that prove him to be a master of the "jotting art." His Excellency's next move will be to visit Montreal and talk in favor of the Pure Milk League. There is certainly room for reform, as the death rate of children from drinking impure milk in Montreal is very great.

A writer on the London, England, Standard, who has come to Canada as an immigrant, writes that he has discovered the average Canadian to have no manners, that we eat meat three times a day, do not drink wine or beer at our meals, and stick our feet up on hotel windows. He also discovered that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is a thoroughgoing democrat, ready to discuss public affairs with the railway brakeman while traveling. These are his reflections before he got further than Montreal. What will he be saying when he gets into the breezy, woolly atmosphere of "the wild and woolly west?"

Says the Montreal Witness: "The opening of the Edmonton constituency was the very occasion to test the feeling of the Northwest both upon the separate schools and upon the provincial rights involved in the school question. The election of Mr. Oliver by acclamation has practically given the separate school debate at Ottawa its coup de grace." It is a misnomer, of course to refer to "Northwest separate schools." There are no separate schools in the Northwest, under the law now existing, which has the support of the overwhelming majority of the people; and which the proposed new law merely continues.

The new Minister of the Interior can hardly say that his election was a test of Northwest sentiment—Kingston News. Why not? It was open to any opponent of the Government to run against Hon. Mr. Oliver. The Government challenged the Opposition to show their strength in the election. The Opposition leaders at Ottawa moved heaven and earth to get someone to run, but the strength of the new minister and the Liberal cause in that typical western constituency was so strong that no opponent would touch the mark. That is the short and long of it, and nothing is to be gained by our protesting Opposition friends.

Funny—For the Boys.
[Mount Morris (Ill.) Index.]

Something really funny occurred not long since when one of our school teachers was out riding with his best girl. On reaching their destination they found two of the girl's small brothers had quietly accompanied them, seating themselves behind in the buggy.

Hazing and Civilization.
[Baltimore Sun.]

How imperfect is our civilization is illustrated by the continuance of the practice of hazing and the unwillingness of boards of trustees, faculties, grand juries, police courts, and policemen to stamp it out. That college boys should be barbarous is not so surprising, in view of their immaturity, but what is shocking is the attitude of many of their seniors. It shames our reputed culture that many families have only a varnish of humanity and that in every college and university is found a number of bullies and toughs whose distorted ideas of "fun" are accepted by the public.

Katter of Proportion.
[New York Sun.]

Guest—Don't you like to have company to dinner?
Truthful Tommy—No'm. We have more to eat, but I don't get as much of it.

Feminine Amenities.

Myrtilla—He tried to kiss me in the dark.
Hosalling—Yes, he probably thought the game wasn't worth the candle.

Not To Be Trusted.
[Cincinnati Inquirer.]

Grandma—And did you get a letter from your husband this morning?
Young Wife—No, I expected one, but the carrier tells me the mails have been very irregular for the past week.
Grandma—Past week, fiddlesticks! They've always been the way. You can't trust one of 'em out of your sight.

Wanted—A Setback.
[Chicago Chronicle.]

There is nothing so wholesome for a man or a nation at times as a good setback and a fresh start. If Russia does not believe this, let her ask France.

Eager for the Fray.
[Exchange.]

Grandma—My dear, you know nothing of the battles of life.
Debbie Tante—No; but I hope soon to get into an engagement.

Why He Laughed.
[Cleveland Plaindealer.]

"What are you smiling at, John?"
"At a little item I just read here. The writer says 'The best of us talk too much.'"
"And why should you laugh at that?"
"Why? Well, I guess it's just because it's such a roundabout way of paying you a compliment, my dear."

Superior Sex.
[Chicago News.]

"Man," remarked the boarder who reads the scientific pages of patent medicine almanacs, "can stand a heat of 300 degrees."
"True," replied the young man who floors in a drygoods emporium throughout meals, "but some women get madder than that."

A Light Confusion.
[Washington Star.]

"That young man says he is heart-broken," said the sympathetic girl.
"That is a common mistake among young people," answered the young man. "They are always mistaking broken engagements for broken hearts."

Accommodating.
[Chicago Journal.]

An old woman who had received a check went with great glee to a bank to draw the money.
"This check is crossed; we can't pay it over to you, sir, my good woman."
"All right, sir; my good woman, then," was the immediate reply.

No Encouragement.
[Chicago Journal.]

"Suppose," said he, feeling his way, "your father should ask me what my expectations are in—er—this direction. What shall I say?"
"Speak the truth," replied the sweet girl. "Tell him you don't know."

DEATH OF GEO. GOODERHAM

Head of Big Distilling Firm Passes Away Aged 84.

Toronto, May 1. — Mr. George Gooderham died at his home "Daveney," corner of St. George and Bloor streets, this afternoon. Mr. Gooderham had spent the winter in Florida with his daughter, Miss Gooderham, and also his physician, with whom he returned home a month ago, apparently much benefited in health by his trip, and was out on Saturday afternoon. A sudden chill developed into acute bronchitis, and this morning a change for the worse took place, death ensuing at 2:30 this afternoon.

George Gooderham was the third son of the late William Gooderham, Toronto, and was born March 14, 1829. He early entered the firm of Gooderham & Worts, distillers, founded by his father, and of which he was president at the time of his death. Mr. Gooderham was also a trustee of the General Hospital, president of the Manufacturers' Life, president of the Bank of Toronto, senator of the Toronto University, past president of the St. George Club, president of the Toronto College of Music, and a director in numerous other concerns and clubs, including St. James Club, Melville, and the Oriole. Mr. Gooderham was an enthusiastic yachtsman. He at one time owned the champion yacht "Canada," and usually held the tiller of his own yacht, the Oriole. Mr. Gooderham is survived by his widow, his sons, Messrs. William Gooderham, Albert Gooderham, George H. Gooderham, Ross Gooderham, all of Toronto, and his daughters, Mrs. J. F. W. Ross, Mrs. Harry Beatty, of Toronto; Mrs. Acheson, wife of Rev. Mr. Cheson, of Middlebury, Conn., and Miss Gooderham, of Toronto.

Mr. Gooderham was reputed to be the wealthiest man in the Province of Ontario. A Conservative in politics, he has contributed largely to the funds of his party, and in July, 1896, was re-elected by the Tupper Administration for appointment to the senate of Canada. Mr. Gooderham was a member of the Church of England. He married Harriet, daughter of Joseph Kay Dean, 133 St. George street, Toronto.

REPORT WAS FAVORABLE

Magistrate Therefore Decided Not to Punish Walter Dunstone.

"Wife represents him as doing well," was the entry made this morning by Police Magistrate Lane opposite the name of Walter Dunstone. Dunstone was in the court a few days ago on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, and he was given time to show that he was prepared to behave himself in a more becoming way. Since then he has been doing well, according to his wife, and the magistrate agreed to allow him to go without the payment of a fine.

There were several other offenders before the magistrate. Albert McKee and William McKee were fined $5 or ten days in jail for being drunk, and for the same offense Samuel Crockett was assessed $3 or ten days. John Finnegan, another drunk, was allowed to go on condition that he left the city, and two others were dismissed.

The assault case of John W. Telfer against Fred Dowling was withdrawn, and a couple of bylaw cases were adjourned.

WEAK DIGESTION

Indigestion and dyspepsia have weak nerves. People who are weak and miserable should know that health would return if the digestion were made normal. This is just the condition Hutch tablets bring about. It cures constipation, biliousness, nervousness, liver and kidney troubles, and all other ailments of the digestive system. You will see that you get Hutch, then, for stomach troubles.

Tea Is Beneficial.

The notion that tea is injurious to persons of weak nerves is a false idea, and is like a rut into which the scientist, Jonathan Hutchinson, Tea is in reality a nerve nutrient, and is extremely beneficial to weak nerves, especially when tea is taken direct from the gardens, packed in sealed lead packets such as the "Salada" Ceylon Tea, which is the highest award and gold medal at St. Louis Exposition.

FOR SPRING DEBILITY

YOU SHOULD RESTORE RICHNESS TO THE BLOOD BY USING

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Habit is one of the strongest forces of nature. It is like a rut into which it is easy to run, but which too often leads to misfortunes and calamity.

The habit of dosing with salts and purgatives in the spring is doing much to undermine the health of the present generation.

In the spring the blood is thin, the system run down, and the body weak and enervated. What you need is a tonic and restorative, such as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

If you have been a slave to the habit of dosing the system with salts or similar weakening purgatives you will appreciate Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which acts on the principle of forming new blood, building up the system and creating new vitality.

It is something to strengthen rather than weaken that you most need in the spring, and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food supplies this need as no other medicine ever known to do.

By its use the action of the heart becomes strong and regular, the stomach is supplied with the nervous energy which is necessary to healthful digestion, and every organ of the body is enabled to carry out the duty imposed on it by nature.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.
