MAKE THE LITTLE ONES HAPPY.

Why not pass through life like a gleam of sunshine, cheering and refreshing the hearts of those we meet? Entering into others' trials and helping to bear their burdens are blessed services, which are their own rewards.

We realize the comforts derived from sympathy—"that fellow-feeling which makes us wondrous kind." But how much sympathy do we bestow on the little ones?

Their need for it is greater than we think, for the old are just as apt to forget that they were once young as the young are apt to forget that they will one day be old. To us their sorrows over "dead" dolls and broken carts seem very trivial, yet they agitate them just as much as a fall in stocks and a sick baby disturb us children of a larger growth. Their feeble power and lack of experience place them in a trying position. Every accident appears an irremediable disaster; each little failure an abiding ruin.

A distinguished preacher was asked what was the most poignant grief of his checkered career. "An unhappy childhood," was the unhesitating response. Dickens was seared by the fires of younger afflictions. Byron was wrecked by his mother's lack of sympathy.

Oh, let us be careful how we treat those tender blossoms of heaven, so shrinkingly sensitive, so quick to detect the loving glance, the kindly word—and so parched, many of them, for want of the dew of affectionate sympathy and tender interest!

Many a man and woman afflicted with a melancholy temperament which distorts and discolors all his or her views of life owes that terrible nemesis to an uncared-for childhood. Every touch upon such plastic character leaves its impress; every stain defiles. Don't keep your heart's wealth and best bon mots for the drawing room. Take them up in the nursery.

As the evenings grow longer, and recreation in the open air is no longer pleasant, parents should provide indoor amusements for their children. Make home pleasant, as pleasant as innocent fun and play can make it. Don't ask the little ones to go to bed right after supper; don't make the school-going boys and girls do your housework for you, and then study their lessons for school, and don't ask the grown-up boys and girls to sit around quietly until they are sleepy. Let all have amusements to suit them: Introduce music and plays into your house. Let the parents take part in their children's sports. You will give them such a liking for home that, as the boy grows into the young man and the girl into the young lady, no outside enjoyment will give them such satisfaction as the pleasures of home. Then, at a reasonable hour, gather all together for night prayers; let the smaller ones retire and the older ones either study or do something useful until bedtime.—The New World.

Judge (to prospective jurymen)—Have you any preconceived ideas, sir, in regard to this case? Prospective Jurymen—I think—Judge—Stop! sir; stop right there! You are disqualified for the duties of a jurymen.

HENRY CLAY.

Many good anecdotes are told of Henry Clay—among them this: A new congressman sought to distinguish himself by attacking the great American statesman.

While he was delivering his oration Mr. Clay read a newspaper; at its close Mr. Clay said nothing—nobody else said anything and the new congressman sat down in silence to meditate on his folly.—Our Dumb Animals.

"ONE AT A TIME, GENTLEMEN."

A ticket seller in a theater once owned a parrot that was quick at learning to repeat the phrases he heard. Thus, among other things, he was soon able to exclaim: "One at a time, gentlemen; one at a time, please!" For this sentence was constantly in the mouth of his master. The ticket men went to the country for a summer vacation and took the educated parrot along with him. One day the bird got out of his cage and disappeared. His owner searched all about for him, and finally towards evening found him perched on the limb of a tree, while a dozen crows were pecking at him whenever they could get a chance. And all this time the poor parrot, with his back humped up, was edging away and constantly exclaiming "one at a time, gentlemen, one at a time, please!"—Harper's Round Table.

Diseases of the Liver.

You may always know when your liver is out of order, or when you are what is called bilious, by any of the following symptoms: Pain in the side and back, dizziness, dull headache, a bad taste in the mouth in the morning, yellow-colored complexion, yellowish tint in the eyes, costiveness or diarrhoea of slimy dark color, low spirit, and general debility. It is acknowledged by all physicians and others, who have seen their action, that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are a perfect cure for all bilious affections. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are sold by all medicine dealers.
