

[Texts]

Agencies, though the province with an indication of the use of particular chemicals. But the legislation never takes by the province as to where it will apply, in what concentration and in what industry.

Mr. McCain

Mr. McCain: I just want to clarify. I think I understand what you said. You are saying the province decide what is applied and it has a what concentration it is applied in.

Mr. Tobin

Mr. Tobin: They work out a program of spraying in which they do, indeed, take advice from the federal government but the ultimate responsibility is with the province.

Mr. McCain

Mr. McCain: I was interested in what Mr. McCain said, that there is a conflict between government and industry in the sense that the province is not a free market.

Mr. Tobin

Mr. Tobin: I don't think it is a free market. I think it is a market with a lot of government intervention.

The Chairman

The Chairman: Now we are getting into a whole new debate on a subject that I would like to see discussed.

The Chairman

The Chairman: I would like to thank the witness and to thank the committee members for their participation.

Our next meeting

Our next meeting is Thursday. It will be the submission of a report to the committee. The full committee will meet again on Friday with representatives of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

[Continued]

the use of chemicals for the purpose of the application of the law. The use of chemicals is not the only way to control the use of chemicals. The use of chemicals is not the only way to control the use of chemicals.

Mr. McCain

Mr. McCain: I just want to clarify. I think I understand what you said. You are saying the province decide what is applied and it has a what concentration it is applied in.

Mr. Tobin

Mr. Tobin: They work out a program of spraying in which they do, indeed, take advice from the federal government but the ultimate responsibility is with the province.

Mr. McCain

Mr. McCain: I was interested in what Mr. McCain said, that there is a conflict between government and industry in the sense that the province is not a free market.

Mr. Tobin

Mr. Tobin: I don't think it is a free market. I think it is a market with a lot of government intervention.

The Chairman

The Chairman: Now we are getting into a whole new debate on a subject that I would like to see discussed.

The Chairman

The Chairman: I would like to thank the witness and to thank the committee members for their participation.

Our next meeting

Our next meeting is Thursday. It will be the submission of a report to the committee. The full committee will meet again on Friday with representatives of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.