PLAIN TALKS ON INVESTMENTS

When a man or woman invests money in times like these they should give more thought to the intrinsic values behind the investment than they do to the income received, because, unless there is ample margin on the values behind the investment, there is danger of losing the entire principal, and if you lose the principal, what is the good of a few dividends?

The one investment that looms big on the horizon today is the oil industry, and in making this broad statement, I am only voicing the opinion of the greatest experts in the financial world.

While uncertainty prevails in nearly every commercial line, there is no uncertainty as to the future of oil; therefore, if there ever was an opportune moment for investment in "oil stocks" it is now.

While the big war raged in Europe the entire oil industry worked under a handicap that was not understood nor appreciated until the armistice was signed, and now when we realize how this handicap cut off profits, especially for the producing oil companies, we see many logical reasons for an era of prosperity such as the industry never before experi-

The facts in the case are so simple and so easily learned that even the novice can see the handwriting on the wall, indicating a new era in commercial life which has already been called "The Petroleum Age."

Oil is already supplanting coal as the fuel for the world, and unless all known signs fail, the demand for oil will be far greater than the supply for many decades to come.

Every oil company that was able to earn profits during the past year should from now on double or treble their regular earnings, even though they do not increase their gross business, because it is now possible to greatly reduce operating expenses without reducing the production or income. I say this because it is a well-known fact that the cost of drilling new wells. during the past six months has mounted so fast as to make development of new properties almost impossible, so when you find a company that carried on this new development in the face of these great handicaps, it is only logical to assume that this company, thru the force of circumstances alone, must enjoy great prosperity in future.

I know of one oil company that has actually drilled and brought in no less than nine new wells during the past six months—a company that under the greatest handicap increased its producing wells from eight to seventeen—and if this one feature is not enough to convince you that it is a great investment opportunity, I can get you other reasons which even the pessimist must admit are indisputable evidence of the fact. This company is a Canadian corporation, holding leases on carefully selected properties in no less than five noted oil districts.

In all, the company has more than 19,000 acres, and with only a few hundred acres fully or partially developed, it is already earning sufficient money to insure the payment of regular dividends at the rate of 18% yearly.

As we can only judge the future by the past, we must analyze what a company has already accomplished to anticipate what it should do as time goes, on, and that is why I tell you what this young Canadian company accomplished when many older concerns could not hold their own.

You can purchase stock in this Canadian company today at par, one dollar a share, and at this figure you hold a security that nets you 18% yearly, even if the company never increases its earnings, which we must acknowledge is most unlikely. This company pays its dividends every three months, the next payment amounting to 41/2% (four and one-half cents on each share of stock), being due on February 10th, to all stockholders of record January 31st. This means that by purchasing stock on or before,

January 31st, you are in ample time to share in this coming dividend, and as the company has made this wonderful record during a period when labor, material and equipment were at their highest, is it not reasonable to anticipate even larger dividends as costs decline and profits increase?

I would like to see every reader of this paper a shareholder in this company, because I honestly believe it is the one best purchase of the entire market.

If you have a little money to invest, take my advice and do it now. Call, write or phone, and I will give you the facts without glow or embellishment -real facts that cannot be disputed. Faithfully,
