

terrible war in history had been brought to a conclusion, and now members of the Canadian parliament were asked to ratify the peace treaty which had terminated it.

Before referring to the length to which he wished to mention the visit of the Prince of Wales and to express the pleasure which it gave him, the coming of the prince, he said, was a timely one. "We over here," said Mr. Whidden, "are but new-world Britons. The Prince of Wales is an old-world Canadian." His visit would tend to interpret to the people of Canada the significance and advantage of British institutions and traditions. A democratic people was receiving a democratic prince who was a product of the most democratic empire in the history of the world.

Cure for Industrial Unrest.

The present session, said the speaker, would probably be known as the peace treaty session. The meeting of the peace treaty to the world and Canada was an important one. As a cure for industrial unrest he advised the adoption of the principles for which sixty thousand Canadian soldiers lay dead in Flanders and France. The member for Nanaimo, B. C., Mr. J. C. McIntosh, in seconding the adoption of the address, expressed first the regret that would be felt through the country at the loss of the services of Sir Thomas White as finance minister. His place had been taken by Mr. Henry Drayton who, Mr. McIntosh thought, would no doubt repeat as a member of the government, his successful career as head of the railway committee.

Borden Behind Labor.

Mr. McIntosh turned to the peace treaty, paying particular attention to the labor clauses. These, he said, had been conceived and written by Sir Robert Borden, and Mr. McIntosh felt that labor in Canada and throughout the world need have no fear of the mind and hand of the personality behind these principles.

He felt that these clauses should be made effective in Canada by immediate legislation. The necessity for such already had been shown, for the nightmare of unemployment must be removed from the minds of the laborers. Mr. McIntosh expressed the hope that labor would soon have much greater representation in the house, as he felt that this would, in a great measure, make for stability in the nation.

The work of the board of commerce was given high praise, and the speaker felt that while his criticism was due to the lack of production during the war years, there had also been much profiteering, and the board of commerce must be on guard to check these practices.

McKenzie and Peace Treaty.

Mr. D. D. McKenzie, who followed, congratulated the mover and second on the members on his side of the house and Liberals generally in the west being accorded to H. R. H. the Prince of Wales.

Dealing with the peace treaty, Mr. McKenzie said there was in it a suggestion of changes in the relationship between Canada and the motherland. He urged that extreme caution be exercised before any changes in the relationship were entered into. He moved the adjournment of the address.

When the premier rose to speak Sir Sam Hughes asked for a vote of confidence to be accorded, Sir Robert said he expected it would be resumed very soon.

Bureau Protest.

Hon. Jacques Bureau protested against taking any definite action on the treaty before members had been given an explanation of it and an opportunity to consider it.

Sir Robert replied that it was only reasonable to give members time to consider the treaty.

D. D. McKenzie explained that he had agreed with the prime minister to an adjournment of the debate after his statement.

Sir Robert Borden then moved that it was expedient that the parliament of Canada approve the peace treaty and the protocols attached thereto.

Premier's Presentation.

In opening his address, Sir Robert said that we were still too near to the tremendous events of the past five years to realize their full significance.

Dealing with the need for ratifying the treaty, Sir Robert said the pledge had been given that this treaty would be submitted to parliament and this pledge was now fulfilled. There is, he said, the greatest urgency for securing ratification at the earliest possible moment. The period within which Germany shall carry out many of her undertakings dates from the past five years to realize their full significance.

"It is anticipated," said the prime minister, "that the treaty will be referred to will ratify in a short time, and we have been urgently requested to use every possible expedition in having the treaty considered in Canada." The bill making provision for carrying into effect the terms of the treaty so far as Canada is concerned would afford opportunity for such further debate as might be desired.

Allies Arrange Kaiser.

That part of the treaty dealing with penalties was summarized by Sir Robert as follows:

"The allied powers publicly arraigned William the Second of Hohenzollern, formerly German Emperor, for a supreme offence against international morality and the sanctity of treaties. A special tribunal will be constituted to try him, composed of five judges, one appointed by each of the five allied powers, who will address a request to the government of the Netherlands for the surrender of the ex-empire in order that he may be put on trial. Further the German government recognizes the right of the allied powers to bring before military tribunals persons accused of having committed acts in violation of the laws and customs of war. Such persons as are found guilty shall be sentenced to punishments laid down by law. The German government agrees to hand over to the allied powers all persons charged with having committed such acts."

One dollar a month is being asked for rent of a small bath-room flat, six months' and as many as eight and ten people are living in small houses with accommodation for more than four persons, owing to the dearth of houses.

Beach avenue a number of duplex houses recently erected rent for $45 a month, the tenants finding their own fuel for heating. Something will have to be done to remedy conditions in this section before the cold weather sets in," is the opinion of Beach residents.

BASEBALL PREACHER HAS MANY GOOD WORDS FOR THE BRITISH NAVY.

If the 7000 to 8000 people who went to the Arena yesterday afternoon to hear Billy Sunday expected to hear a great and convincing address on the subject of prohibition, they must have come away with a distinct feeling of disappointment, as Mr. Sunday talked less on the subject of temperance than he did on anything else. Mr. Sunday was engaged presumably to speak on the referendum question, and a big gathering was organized to listen to his views on that subject. But in his own peculiar way Mr. Sunday gave a lecture on the late war, and slated the late German empire and its late emperor; he spoke an eulogy on the British Empire and the English navy; he lauded the Canadian soldiers to the sky, gave praise to General Currie for his leadership, and held out a welcome to the Prince of Wales when he crosses the border. But in regard to prohibition—the real object of the meeting—we'll fit in a very bad sixth place in Mr. Sunday's speech. The general idea of the speech was to take the late German empire and all the bad deeds of its rulers and draw an analogy to the detriment of the drink traffic.

One of Billy Sunday's methods is to drive home his point by shocking his hearers. He resorted to this practice several times in the course of his speech. From the noticeably pained look in the faces of not a few of those present, he did not please all when he said that church members that voted against prohibition would fill hell to the teeth their feet would stick out of the windows.

Good Crowd Present.

The big Arena was fairly full when Mr. Sunday accompanied by Mrs. Sunday, at 2:30 p.m., entered the building, and quite two-thirds of the audience was composed of women and children. The north end of the building was but sparsely peopled and when Mr. Sunday began to speak nearly all these people moved out to find seats—some of them to the more crowded part of the building. However, made so much noise in transferring themselves that Mr. Sunday had to cease speaking for some minutes. Whether or not the authorities or the organizers of the meeting feared trouble, it would be difficult to say. The large representation of the police force were in the building, and a mounted force of constables outside. There was no work for them to do. The meeting was as peaceful as such meetings should be.

In speaking of the Prince of Wales, the mention of whose name was deemed to be sacrilegious, Mr. Sunday said that when he crossed the border they would give him the welcome hand, and make Toronto the grave under British flag than riding in a Pierce-Arrow under the German flag. The world has got to yank its hat off to the British navy. He said that the United States seaports would now be in ruins if it had not been for the British navy.

In concluding his address, Mr. Sunday advised all his hearers to vote "No" to all four questions, and then Ontario would be an Eldorado to live in. He closed with a prayer in which he asked God to bless, amongst other things and persons, Mayor Church, Toronto editor, and reporters. His temperance cause.

Among the most outstanding phrases in Mr. Sunday's address were the following:

"I am facing the same conditions in fighting the liquor traffic as in the war."

"If the liquor traffic had their way the world would be dead-eyed, muttering, stinking, vomiting place."

"America today is so dry that a man must prime himself before he can sleep."

"I never mention the saloon business without feeling I want a disinfectant."

"The liquor traffic today has the same rates of wound, pestilence or downfall which Germany preached. It is seeking control of politics and every other interest."

"In places where the liquor traffic holds sway, the women didn't smile, and the children did not sing."

"The liquor traffic spares neither sex, age, or class."

"Germany made a world that might have been a paradise into a seething caldron of hell."

"The Anlie branch of the G.W.V.A. has elected the following officers: Comrade F. Stradwick, president; Comrade J. Bryant, first vice-president; Comrade J. Lott, second vice-president."

"Guy Zinn, heavy-hitting center-fielder for the Shagmets, escaped the heavy hand of the law today when Alf Strowger, Michigan-Ontario umpire, withdrew a charge of assault."

"Assaulting Charles Adam with a jack resulted in Mordcaul James being fined $200 or four months in jail when he appeared before Judge Gauld in the criminal court this afternoon. The fine will be paid, and $150 will go to the plaintiff."

HAMILTON

Hamilton, Sept. 2.—Members of the works committee tonight took a fling at the methods employed by the city engineer's department to make the location of main line sewers and water mains.

Excavation was given to the report of A. D. Hitchcock that the traffic over the Chedoke Creek bridge did not warrant the spending of $7,250 for a new bridge.

After considerable jockeying, Hamilton is to appoint a committee whose only object in life will be of secure data and figures of the activities of some of the local profilers.

After a thorough examination of the voters' list, the local branch of the Anlie branch of the G.W.V.A. has elected the following officers: Comrade F. Stradwick, president; Comrade J. Bryant, first vice-president; Comrade J. Lott, second vice-president.

KING OF ITALY

TO GIVE UP LANDS

Will Surrender Crown Properties for Benefit of Peasants and Former Soldiers.

Rome, Sept. 2.—King Victor Emmanuel has decided to surrender all the crown properties in favor of the peasants and for national work for former soldiers.

Premier Nitti at one of the first sittings of parliament, which is to be opened Wednesday, will make this announcement.

The crown property of Italy larger than those of any other country, since the houses of Savoy inherited the property of the rulers of the eleven states into which Italy was divided before the kingdom became united. During the war the king gave over his splendid royal palace at Caserta, the Castel Moscati di Piedmont, for the use of his soldiers. His intention now is that the vast lands which he possesses, virtually in every region of Italy, shall go to the peasants who fought in the war, while his palaces, castles and other buildings shall be utilized for philanthropic purposes. The king has expressed a desire that his private patrimony be used like that of any other citizen.

Conditions which prevailed during the first four months of this year, he said, "caused considerable alarm among the sugar refiners. We thought we had more sugar than we could sell during the year. During the first months the foot board purchased what they considered an ample supply for the present year. As a matter of fact, we ourselves were rather of the opinion that we had too much sugar. We set out to sell that which we did not expect to sell in Canada. I personally went to Europe in April with that idea and I happened to be in England and saw what developments took place. There was a great cry in England as to speeding up industries, and biscuit manufacturers, confectioners and such concerns approached the royal commission asking how they could be expected to speed up industry with the present allocation of sugar. The royal commission then decided to release sugar to these manufacturers, and they were permitted to buy sugar in the open market as they pleased. In the first week in June the situation became accentuated when France made a free market for sugar. That week sugar went up three shillings per 100 pounds. The demand became so acute within two or three weeks that 150,000 tons of sugar were shipped over from the New York market. When I left for Europe I did not know what to do with the sugar on hand, and when I should turn in only Score's expert tailor men can tailor them to your measure.
