HADJIN, Asiatic Turkey, May 5.-Notwithstanding the presence of the troops here, the situation is desperate, on account of the lack of food and medical supplies. PREFERRING A MAJOR

An Interesting Incident in a Rosedale When the eminent baritone stood up to sing in a Rosedale drawing-room the other evening, he had not had an opportunity to rehearse with the accompanist. But he had been assured the young man was fully capable for the task. So he began with confidence, But the man at the piano had a military ancestry. He loved the glory and the clash of war, and, therefore, what was more natural than for him to look with special favor upon major thirds, cal equipment of the accompanist was years at the ouside. cal equipment of the accompanist was not equal to the occasion. Yet a perfect technique is not hard to secure. Anybody may have it by securing a following resolution:

Safety Depends on Navy.
Continuing, Col. Denison said:
"Our safety as a people depends u on the strength of Britain's navy, a it is not only our duty, but our kee est interest to assist to the utme on the strength of but our keenest interest to assist to the utmost of our power. Few know how much we should have to pay for defence if we were in any other country. In Great Britain the people (of whom one-third are almost starving) pay for defence no less than $6.55 per head per annum. In the United States, for all kinds of military and naval expenses, they pay $5.90 per annum. In Canada we pay about 75 cents per head. If we were annexed to the United States, as one writer suggested the other day, as the only escape from paying for a navy, our share of the military and naval expenses of the United States, which would automatically fall upon us, would be the enormous sum of about $35,000,000 per annum. If we paid per head as the British people pay, it would cost us about $39,000,000 per annum. Is there any reason why we should not be able to expend very much more than the $6,000,000 per annum which we pay now."

As to how we could assist, the speaker believed small fleets on the Atlantic and the Pacific would be waste of money. The decisive fight would be decided by great battleships. When the mastery of the sea was settled by the defeat of one fleet that would end it all. The scattered ships would not count. Of what use were the Russian warships in the Baltic while Togo was defeating their comrades at Port Arthur?

About as useful would be a few Can-

About as useful would be a few Can

About as useful would be a few Canadian vessels in our coast harbors! We must arrange that all we can do must be done to help in the great struggle, must be done with the best ships and with the best men, and Canada would want to be represented in the front line, alongside of her comrades from all the empire, instead of waiting in our own ports with a few vessels to endeavor to claim a share in the glory if the flag is successful, or to surrender with humiliation without a fight if the decisive battle goes against us.

Col. Denison appealed to his hearers to forget petty politics. We could not build a Dreadnought in this country to be of any service if the war is near at hand, but we could buy one or even two, and the Brazilian Dreadnoughts two, and the Brazilian Dreadnoughts should be bought now. No chance should be left for them to drift into

ALIEN LAW FOR TRAINMEN

WINNIPEG, May 5.-The Trainmen's Brotherhood have placed before the labor department at Ottawa an interesting international question.
