tisms, the puns, the rhymes, the mar-yelous praise and the rude jibes that ing in in reply to The White Lyre's offer for the best answer to the question, "Why is Toronto?" Some end with a "Rah, Rah for Toronto." others cite political and historical facts. and others paint it as a place so horrible we wonder why they would live here. The friendly rivalry between the Canadian cities is the subject of many jests, and while a Torontonian may answer that Toronto is Toronto because it isn't Hamilton, a resident of on may come back with the White Lye that, having lived in Hamilton only 20 years, he didn't know there was such a place as Toronto.

The competition is an innovation in Canada, yet the replies would indicate that Canadians are not so slow as a New Yorker might think. The White Lyre says that similar competitions will probably be kept up in The White Lyre, open to their subscribers, where-in will be asked such questions as Where is Hamilton?" "What is the difference between wife and mother-"Why don't you marry the girl?" etc., etc.

A separate paragraph is used in this notice to impart the astounding fact that the ladies seem to be more hunorous than the men! Tho the contest closes Nov. 9; all answers dated not later than the 9th, tho received later, will be considered.

Richard Battice, an aged Indian, sold a load of hay in Hagersylle on Saturday last, and upon returning home became involved in a quarrel with his wife and stepson, named Fred Scott, or Fred Taylor. They beat the old man unmercifully, breaking his arm and shoulder, blackening both eyes and fracturing the base of the skull, it is alleged.

The former had been connected front, because of the number of streets with the New York Central, had been crossing them by means of viaducts. These viaducts are rendered necessary by the river bridges, which are high enough to meet the needs of the river traffic along the waterfront from the railway companies, and his conclusions under this head were very largely the result of his personal observation.
