In an address from a news-paper office last night he thanked the electors for their vote. Shaw, the New Man. Most of the interest after the first few returns were in centred in the contest for fourth place, which went to Trystee W. H. Shaw. The first returns came from Ward 3, and Con-troller Simpson for a while was runtroller Simpson for a while was run-ming ahead of Controller Foster, with Mr. Shaw fifth. The outside vote fav-ored Mr. Shaw, and he is the new man on the board for 1917. He polled a good vote from every ward. Only in good vote from every ward. Only in Ward 7 did Mr. Simpson receive more support than he. His message on the eve of his election was one of thanks. "I have to fill the shoes of a good man," he said. "I will do it to the very best of my ability."

"It is a very serious matter," said Sir Adam Beck at London last night, speak-ing of the result of the radial bylaw vice speak-ing of the result of the radial bylaw vice speak-at Hamilton, which went against the project by a small majority. It was a very serious matter for Toronto. He did not feel himself to be in a position to say just how serious to the project the oppo-sition there would prove. "What will be the next step?" he was asked. "That is up to the other munici-palities to decide," said Sir Adam. He commented on the fact that with one or municipalities had voted in favor of the radial scheme.

The seriousness of the situation was enhanced by the fact that the C.N.R. was applying to have its plans approved on April 4th. THREE BYLAWS

April 4th. Support Was Disappointing. Sir Adam attributed the defeat of the bylaw in Hamilton to the lack of local support from quarters where it might have been expected, to the fact that the munition plants had not shut down to allow their men to yote. As for the opposition, it had been a "still humt." He would have been sur-prised if in the short time they had at their disposal they had been able to combat the organized resistance to the project. They could not possibly get over the whole district. Where they had been able to make the people understand the nature of the proposition they had rolled up large majorities for the pro-ject. Arguments Were Weak.

Arguments Were Weak. Arguments Were Weak. As for the arguments put up against the scheme, "the war first" and so on, Sir Adam had nothing but contempt. Was not the Toronto-Hamilton highway started to give work to the unemployed? And yet the very mean who had advocated that piece of work objected to this. The men would come back from the front and find no work to do. "It is a very serious matter," said Sir Adam again. "It was a foregone conclusion," said Sir Adam, speaking of Toronto's major-ing oing ahead with the Chippawa Creek development, as in the case of transmis-ston lines, without the authority of the people, he explained. If the people in some way expressed their desire to under-take the responsibility the government had promised to consider the advisability of turning the project over to them. "Well, it's some indication, isn't it?" said Sir Adam. "Practically unanimous." Sir Adam con the result of the better than they had expected. The may the result in St. Catharines. Hydro-Electric Question Re-The whole vote was, said he, an unmistakable indication to the government of the will of the people as to public ownership.

The government had promised to go ahead if it had a strong expression of opinion from the people. "I think the electors have selected a All three bylaws carried at the municipal elections yesterday in Toronto. The good council for 1917," the mayor added. "I am glad of it, because I think ther never was a year in the history of Toronto when careful judgment was more needed in the civic government. The mayor thought on the whole that the vote of the people showed con-fidence in the old council, and especially in the board of control. He believed that if aCpt. Thompson had been in the campaign the whole old board would have been returned. Mr. Shaw he believed, would be a good controller and a valuable addition to the council.

While admitted to be one of the quietest municipal contests in years, the fight for civic honors in the sfit of the ratepayers was not without its surprises. The return of Mayor Church by acclamation for a third term detracted from the contest, and years' experience in municipal life, received $120. He returns to the civic arena after an absence of one year, having failed to secure a seat on the board of control at last year's election. The defeat of W. R. Plewman came as a surprise to his many friends in the ward. During his term of office lost ware he was writing in his of term detracted from the contest, and interest centred in the struggle for the board of control, for which a seat was left vacant by the retirement of Con-troller Thompson. Shaw, will appear on this year's board. He was for twelve years a member of the board of education, and was suc-cessful in his first attempt for higher board of education and was successful in his first attempt for higher honors. His experience as a trustee stood him in good stead and his sup-porters believe he will prove a valu-able addition to Toronto's civic fathers. With the exception of that vindic-fively carried out against James Simp-son there was practically no campaign made for or against the candidates. Controller O'Neill was the only mem-ber of the old board who was con-ceded a seat this year, and a selection of the remainder was more or less hap-hazard. nazard.
