HELD ON THEFT CHARGE.

London. Aug. 16—Describing the taking of Hill 70. The Daily Mail correspondent at the front says:

"Soon after dawn, the Canadians had stormed and taken the whole of Hill 70, famous for one of the toughest struggles ever fought by the Prussian Guards. The front covered by the attack was less than two and a half miles, and the depth of the adaption of the work of the same 1400 yards. The victory is was issued for the man's arrest, and complete, and is acknowledged to be more telling than the present or prospective gain of ground indicates. The Canadians knew they would win. One of the first wounded to come back insisted. I did enjoy going over. Another soldier, quite say in micr. watered over the foliage, Keep the pots standing on damp ashes and ap-ply the water to the pot. In the nother soldier, quite gay in mien, ply the water to the pot. Hour after hour these attacking troops—including the Frourth Prussian Guards, one of the elite divisions of the German army—were subjected to a frightful concentrated fire from our artillery and machine guns. Their losses were frightful. A veteran machine gun officer tells of having had as a target for an hourand a quarter enemy reinforcements coming up in columns of fours for use in counter attacks. He said his men coming up in columns of fours for use in counter attacks. He said his men killed more Germans yesterday than they had seen all together at any previous time. A prisoner said that the ground over which his battalion had advanced was thickly strewn with line when we attacked, no longer exists. Their losses during the several days prior to the assault were very serious. Our guns so steadily swept their positions that ration parties refused to go up, and the men in the trenches remained unfed.

The total number of prisoners is now considered over 400. The counter attacks ceased shortly after dark, and our men slept on the ground they had won and maintained during eighteen hours of constant struggle against the best of Germany. The losses can still be spoken of as moderate, tho the driving off of the counter attacks is often more costly than

He and an orderly were alone in a section of trench used as a battalion headquarters near the firing line during one of the counter attacks. A watchful observer had seen a strong party of Germans using a communication trench on the flank and making their way to the rear of his battalion. He was warned that the enemy were between him and his supporting battalion. The colonel was calm. He was also quick. Two hours afterwards he told how he had to run for his life and send a messenger to his supporting battalion which attacked the adventurous enemy and wiped them out.

Canadian Associated Press Cable.

London. Aug. 16.—Truth, the well-known weekly, remarks in reference to the conferment of honors that to construct an official fountain of honor, guaranteed elways to squirt upon the deserving and never on the undeserving, is a problem in moral and intellectual hydraulics, passing the wit of man. Evidently there is something to be said for having a make-shift fountain which squirts at random on anybody who has the luck or push to get within reach, because such machines have been established in all countries. The reason, no doubt, is that they minister to two of the least mischievous and most amusing human weaknesses, vanity and snobbishness. On the other hand they create among those out of reach of refreshing showers, the mass of heart burning, however, infinitely exceeding the limited hap-
