TONIC TREATMENT FOR INDIGESTION

Remedies That Digest the Food Will Not Cure the Trouble—The Stomach Must Be Fitted to do Nature's Work.

The tonic treatment for indigestion, dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach and gastritis is having remarkable success in curing obstinate cases and deserves attention from every sufferer.

The principal cause of indigestion is a weak stomach. The stomach must be fitted to do its own proper work, instead of being overburdened by the food it receives. The stomach must be able to digest the food for itself, and this is the only way to get relief for only a short time. Ultimately they unfit the stomach to do its own proper work, because they make it already weak powers still weaker by disease, while the remedy that strengthens the stomach makes it capable of digesting the food for itself, and this benefit is lasting.

A remedy that is not only a tonic for the stomach, but for the blood and nerves as well, invigorates the entire system and makes recovery from the painful, weakening effects of indigestion rapid and thorough. Every sufferer from indigestion will find in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills just the tonic needed, as they enrich the blood, tone the stomach and thus enable it to do the work nature intended it should do.

This has been proved in thousands of cases, and it is worth the while of every sufferer from indigestion to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. Mr. Edward Chatterton, Cambridge, N. B., says: "I have been a great sufferer from indigestion and stomach trouble and although I had treatment from several doctors, I did not find a cure until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had almost begun to think my case incurable when I came across a pamphlet advertising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to give them a trial. I am very thankful that I did so, for I had not been taking the Pills long before I found them helping me, and in six weeks every symptom of the trouble had vanished. I can now eat heartily almost any kind of food, and no longer experience pain and discomfort after eating."

It is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, rich blood that they cure all troubles as indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, headaches and backaches, St. Vitus dance, and other forms of nervous trouble. They cure the irregularities of girlhood and womanhood, and bring ease, comfort and health to sufferers. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANGLICAN SYNOD ENDS ITS SESSIONS

Important Recommendations Made—King's College Matters—Increase of Salary for Secretary, Archdeacon Newnam

Fredericton, N. B., Nov. 5.—The Church of England Synod concluded its labors at 8 o'clock this evening after a profitable meeting which lasted four days. A good part of the time of the closing session was taken up in discussing the affairs of King's College and several good suggestions for increasing its efficiency were advanced.

The following reports were adopted as read: Statistics, Theology, King's College, Lord's Day Observance, Gible Landis, Church Buildings, Pan Anglican Conference, Colonial and Continental Society, Secretary's report, Treasurer's report.

The report of the committee on moral and social reform was read by J. S. Armstrong and discussed. It reviewed the work done during the year, making special mention of the work of moral and social reform, the amendments to the liquor license law and the successful outcome of local option elections in St. John and Harcourt. The committee consider the following subjects as coming within their purview:

Sunday observance and its safeguarding; generally the enforcement of law and order and the betterment of laws; promotion of temperance; suppression of gambling, under speculation and betting; the suppression and prevention of social vice; the promotion of political purity; relief and amelioration of social conditions; relief and amelioration of health.

The report makes the following reference to the social and white slave trade: "Among the evils of the age none is more demoralizing and pernicious than the so-called social evil. While your committee is not in position of making recommendations, it would urge all who have the cause of Christ and the welfare of humanity at heart, to be on the alert and by every possible means to guard against this gigantic evil."

An amendment by J. S. Armstrong, recommending that every precaution be taken to guard the rising generation from amoral and lust, and deploring the dark morality of men and women, was after some discussion referred to committee. The report was then adopted.

A. C. Fairweather, on behalf of the governors appointed by the synod, submitted the report on King's College. The report concurred in the words expressed by the bishop in his charge and urged the synod to pledge the college its hearty support. An annual collection in each church of the diocese for the benefit of the college, was suggested and also that the theological course be membered.

H. L. Jones, of Weymouth (N. S.), was called upon by the bishop, and briefly presented the claims of King's College to the synod and he considered it the duty of the synod of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia to look after their own divinity schools. This far he has been successful in collecting $7,200 in New Brunswick towards an endowment fund, and hoped to make the amount $15,000. He did not believe people of New Brunswick had ever before been asked to contribute to the college.

The bishop regretted that the Bishop of Nova Scotia and representatives of the governing board had been unable to attend the synod on his invitation and present the claims of the institution.

Rev. Craig Nichols hoped the governing board could grant permission to clergymen to take a course of study at Windsor. Personally he would like to become a graduate of the institution, providing he could take the course without leaving his parish.

A. C. Fairweather promised to bring the matter up at a meeting of the synod of governors to be held at Halifax on Nov. 15.

The discussion on the report was participated in by Canon Smith, Canon Hamilton, Rev. G. F. Scovell, Dean Schofield, Canon Neale, G. O. D. Oddy and Rev. E. E. Tobin. The last named gentleman, who is a recent graduate of King's, spoke in laudatory terms of his alma mater, while some of the other speakers handed out some criticism in regard to the manner in which the college is conducted. The report of the governors was read section by section, and adopted.

On motion of Canon Neale, Old Boys' Association of Rothesay school was given a right to nominate one member to the board of education, the name of the nominee to be in the hands of the secretary before the annual meeting of the synod.

On motion of Canon Oddy a vote of thanks to the press was adopted.

The courtesy of railway and steamboat companies in granting reduced fares to delegates, was acknowledged, and at the

Trill Bottle Relieved—Two Bottles Cured Mr. Alexander of Eczema

If all the people who suffer from Eczema and other skin diseases—even those who have given up hope of ever being cured—would just write for a trial bottle of D. D. D. Prescription, they would quickly find that there is a positive cure. That is what Mr. Wm. Alexander, of Concession, Ont., did.

"I wish to inform you," he writes on July 2nd, "that last summer I was badly afflicted with eczema in both legs. I got doctors' salves to rub on but it seemed to do no good. I saw your advertisement in the paper and wrote to you for a trial bottle which you very kindly sent me.

A few applications told me it was the right medicine. I sent for two bottles and took at your word, which in a few weeks made a perfect cure. I had some of the itching left and sent several friends of mine and some had some. It cured every trace of it.

I am now suffering when you can so easily get instant relief.

suggestion of the bishop, a motion was made to include C. P. R. Station Agent Howard, whom he described as "a good man," in the list of those to be given a vote of thanks for the efficient manner in which he had discharged his duties.

Mr. Newnam referred to his fifty-one years' service, and after thanking the synod for their generosity, stated that the condition of the finances would scarcely justify him in accepting the increased allowance.

Rev. Canon Neale moved a vote of thanks to the bishop for the able, impartial and helpful manner in which he had presided over the meeting. He also thanked the bishop for the delightful evening's entertainment he had provided the delegates at his home.

The bishop who was highly applauded, made a graceful acknowledgment. He was glad the synod was pleased with the manner in which he had presided and he assured them that he was pleased over the way in which they had accepted his rulings. He had been treated with great kindness during his trips through the diocese and it was a great pleasure to himself and Mrs. Richardson to be able to entertain the synod.

In saying farewell to the delegates he expressed the hope that the spirit of God would guide them in their work of carrying out his great purpose.

The meeting closed with prayers by the bishop.

COLD-BLOODED STORY TOLD BY MURDERER

Quill Lake, Saskatchewan, Nov. 5.—Calmly and apparently with little realization of the enormity of his offense, John McNeil, a Hungarian, told the magistrate today how he killed George Thorburn, Mrs. Thorburn and her mother, Mrs. McNiven, on their lonely homestead last Monday.

"I wanted to go to Quill Lake to file a claim on a home Monday," he said. "I stayed at Thorburn's homestead and when he tried to prevent my going away I shot him. I fired both barrels at him at different times. This happened before breakfast and the women looked themselves in the house. I hid in the stable and watched the house for any of them coming out.

"At dinner time Mrs. Thorburn got out of the house and started to run. I got out a horse and followed her. I left the body west of the house in the edge of a scrub about 300 yards away.

"Mrs. McNiven came out of the house and said 'Where are you John?' and she went back again and after a while she came out and started to walk away. I knocked her down with the barrel of the shot gun. I am not sure where I hit her. I left her body about 200 yards northwest of the house in some scrub.

"Mary, the little girl, and George, the boy were alone in the house when I left. After the sun went down I ran away with Mrs. Thorburn's democrat and a feed of oats, butter, food and some blankets."

He declared he did not intend to harm the children.

VOTE OF PEOPLE FIRST ON FINANCE BILL

London, Nov. 6.—The Daily Telegraph says it understands that it has been definitely settled that Lord Lansdowne, the leader of the opposition in the house of lords, will move a resolution in the upper branch of parliament, declining to accept the finance bill until its principles have received the sanction of the electors. The Daily Telegraph adds that it means that the adoption of this resolution by a majority of the members of the house of lords is uncertain.

Fashion Hint for Readers

AUTOMOBILE HAT FOR A YOUNG GIRL

Motor headgear for women is often so youthful and even babyish in type that it is difficult to draw the line between the small daughter's motor bonnet and her mother's. The charming touch, however, is particularly well suited to a little girl with fluffy hair, the soft cloud of hair filling out the brim of the bonnet most effectively. This bonnet is of dark green felt, the ribbon being in a light shade of the same color. The rosette, wound round and round in a new fashion intended to represent a huge rose, is very smart this season.

CANADA AND THE NEW TARIFF LAW IN STATES

Premier by No Means Disturbed Over the Outlook Says Writer in Boston Paper—Argument for Course of the U. S. in Laying New Rates Against Canadian Goods

(Boston Transcript.)

October finds Sir Wilfrid Laurier looking as if rejuvenated by happiness. No wonder! The depression has vanished, trade is strong, revenue buoyant, the wheat grain crop great and good, his opponents weary of fruitlessly clandering his administration. The summer dreadnoughts of our jingoes has aided his national cost defense design. Canada was never so free of race and creed discussions, a condition which fulfills the chief aim of his harmonizing existence, writes Edward W. Thomson in the Boston Transcript. Hence he is as one who has received the palm while still young enough to enjoy the shade. But, as he often remarks, "this is a world of trouble."

I expect him to repeat this maxim in view of the new United States tariff, which threatens Canada by its maximum duties on some Canadian imports from the republic, and letting others in at low rates, or free. The selection would be guided by consideration of the degree in which any commodity is raw material, such as cotton or wool, or completed, such as cotton fabrics, boots and shoes, machinery, etc. The latter would, no doubt, be hit hard, since Canadian public spirit, being incited by Washington's aggression, would stand by such action of Ottawa. Indeed, some United States goods are being boycotted in Canada, and some United States manufacturers imagine the Ottawa government to be restrained from such retaliation, by consideration that Canadian consumers would not put up with any notable increase in prices of such goods as have been hitherto imported from the United States. But it is far from certain that the price of such goods, or of many of them, would be raised even by total exclusion. Here the probable effect of the preferential tariff to British goods must be pondered, as well as the degree in which the United States manufacturers might be incited to move their establishment into Canada. British manufacturers have already become largely alive to the importance of the Canadian market. Elaborate and shrewd plans have been in the making, between them and the politicians, by which to induce their trade here. The Briton will be much stimulated to adapt his supply to the peculiar Canadian demand, and if the American supply be heavily penalized in customs taxes, for a little time the goods might be higher in price.

Second, Laurier has a good conscience in respect of alleged United States' reasons for hitting Canada with the maximum schedule. The blow is unprovoked, Canada did not strike first. She has hitherto applied her minimum schedule to United States goods. Her people buy $187,000,000 from and sell only $75,000,000 to their neighbors; i. e., the average Canadian buys about $27 worth of United States goods, while the average United States citizen buys about 20 cents' worth of Canadian products. The Dominion gives her great neighbor "most favored nation" treatment. Such as the Canadian position.

To this Washington may reply in two ways: (1) that Canada has a special treaty with France, reducing Canadian customs taxes on a certain limited line of French goods; (2) that Canada grants to the product of the United Kingdom a preferential tariff. To the first charge Canada's reply is that the treaty with France does not make her "more favored" than the United States, or any other foreign country, since France gives a special quid pro quo, or buys the favor at a special price. A declared purpose of Canada's establishment of two tariffs, minimum and maximum, was that she might be enabled to bargain with foreign countries, separately, for lines of reduced duties on either side. The invitation was to Washington no less than to Versailles. Therefore Washington, before alleging France to be more favored by Canada's tariff, ought to seek a special treaty with Canada. Should Washington not do so, but proceed to maximumize Canada for specializing France, then Washington will be the aggressor.

Again Canada denies that Washington's supposed contention that Ottawa's preference to Great Britain, Canada's suzerain, makes Great Britain a "most favored nation" in any sense of which any foreign country can justly complain. The preference is a family affair, part of the internal policy of the empire. Germany obstinately denied this some six years ago,
