Address From Throne Read in the Ontario Legislature Yesterday.

Toronto, Feb. 6.—At the formal opening of the legislature, which took place this afternoon, Sir Oliver Mowat, the utenant-governor, read the address from the throne.

The speech referred in feeling terms to the lamented death of the Queen, and also to the part taken by the gallant volunteers in the war in South Africa. All classes o fagriculturists had enjoyed a prosperous year, the lumber trade is n a prosperous condition, and the legislature was congratulated on the great expansion of the mineral industry, the manufacture of pig iron now being firmly established, and nickel and copper mining more active than at any pre rious period.
