TURNED LOOSE.

On Wednesday evening Benjamin Logan, the twelve-year-old boy who was arrested for and found guilty of entering Lilley & Son's store on Main street and stealing money therefrom, was brought before the magistrate for sentence. On account of the previous good character of the boy and promises made by his relatives, the magistrate considered it best not to send him to the reformatory, but decided that he would probably be better if kept away from his parents for a time. Logan was handed over to the care of an uncle, who promised to look after him.

THE LIBRARY PLANS.

The mayor's office today presents the appearance of an art gallery in which the city fathers are kindly and without remuneration acting as guides. The plans received for the new library building are on exhibition and are being examined by quite a number of interested persons. Some of them are quite pretty to look at for a short time—but the general opinion seems to be that the buildings designed are somewhat too expensive, although the architects guarantee to erect them for the amount specified.

WILL MOVE TO MONTREAL.

A Fredericton despatch to the Telegraph says: "H. H. Pitts, editor and proprietor of the Reporter, has accepted a position as traveler for the Sunlight Acetylene Gas Company and has gone to Montreal, where he will make his headquarters. The job department of the Reporter has been leased to William M. Clark, and Miss McLeod, sister-in-law of Mr. Pitts, is looking after the news and business end. Mr. Pitts may move his family to Montreal and will probably sell the Reporter if possible."

WON THE SILVER MEDAL.

Miss Florence Estabrooks, of the west side, who graduated from the Normal school, Fredericton, in June, has received the pleasant news that she has been awarded the silver medal for professional work. Miss Estabrooks is to be congratulated, as it is usually the case for teachers who have had previous experience and are taking post graduate work at the Normal school, to capture the medal, while the fortunate winner this year went direct from high school.

NAUGHTY KIDS.

Considerable complaint is made by grocers and fruit dealers in regard to the conduct of numerous youngsters who gather round the boats and trains while fruit is being unloaded and steal everything they can get hold of. Most of these children are quite young, not old enough to be arrested and too old to be spanked. But they are getting to be a great nuisance, hanging around the cases of fruit and stealing boxes of berries, bananas, and in fact every thing in sight.

She arrived here shortly after eight o'clock and had to wait until the Penobscot sailed before coming in to her berth. ALERTS RE-ORGANIZED.

They Will Play Saturday With a New Pitcher.

The Alerts baseball team which was disbanded on Wednesday has been re-organized under the management of Charles Damsy and the usual Saturday afternoon game will be played tomorrow.

In the re-organized team there is only one new man for tomorrow's game. He is George Malcolm, who as pitcher for the Franklins, in the South and League, has gained quite a reputation. Malcolm is said to be about the swiftest pitcher in the city but is liable to throw a little wild at times. He will pitch for the Alerts tomorrow.

Of the rest of the team the line-up will be as follows: Dolan, c.; McLean, 1 b.; O'Hearn, 2 b.; Thompson, 3 b.; A. White, s.s.; Burns, 1 f.; McAllister, c. f.; Britt, c. f.

For Wednesday's game Manager Damsy expects to put up even a stronger combination. He is in communication with three well known pitchers, but as yet is unable to state which of them will be here.

Word has been received from Fred Webber to the effect that he will not come. Stackpole leaves for the States this evening.

PIGS IN POKES.

An Interesting Sale of Unclaimed Express Parcels.

This forenoon at 86 Germain street, Auctioneer Gerow disposed of upwards of three hundred unclaimed express parcels, which have been lying for some time in the American and Canadian Express Companies' rooms. The packages varied in size from a soap box to a packing case and in shape from a vocal solo to an attack of lumbago. In color they differed from the purchasers—not being green. The sale was what is known as a blind one, that is, no one was permitted to see the contents of the package until after buying.

These parcels had been left in the express companies' rooms for the usual reason, refused, not worth the charges, not ordered, or in some cases the consignees had moved away from the city or died.

There was not so much competition as is sometimes seen but the sale was without a certain amount of interest. The principal buyers were Jews—second-hand dealers—who hid on and most anything that was put up and who got fooled sometimes. The prices realized were fair, but as is usual at such sales, were not sufficient to pay the charges on the packages.

HANGED TODAY.

Fred Lee Rice Pays the Penalty at Toronto.

Pathetic Story of a Young Life That Went All Wrong.

(Special to the Star.)

TORONTO, July 18.—Fred Lee Rice, of Champaign, Illinois, was hanged in the jail yard at 8.02 o'clock this morning for killing County Constable Boyd, in a daring attempt to escape. Every effort had been made to obtain a respite; Congressman Cannon and Senator Mason, both of Illinois, have been active on his behalf at Washington; his mother has appealed to Ottawa; petitions have been forwarded but without success.

Rice went to his end without any apparent tremor. He had spent most of yesterday with his spiritual adviser, Rev. Robt. Hall, city missionary, and retired last night at 10.35 and lay for some time chatting with his guard. He then fell asleep and seemed to pass a restful night. He arose at 5.30 a. m. Rev. Mr. Hall was early at the jail, and after Rice had eaten a light breakfast the minister and he were left alone, and from then until the arrival of Hangman Radcliffe the time was spent in prayer. The march to the scaffold took two minutes and the body was cut down 45 minutes later. His pulse stopped beating twelve minutes after the drop. The coroner's jury found death due to strangulation. Rice made no statement on the scaffold.

The pathetic story of Rice, who only a few years ago was a bashful university student, and who got over his bashfulness under the discipline of university life sufficiently to become a bank robber and murderer, may sometime form the foundation of an interesting novel.

When he was a little boy playing about the streets of Champaign he was the most innocent of lads. He loved his mother. He would never play with girls. He could not be hired to appear in any public exhibition. He would never "speak in school" because people would look at him. When he rose to recite he would blush painfully.

This was true of him when, a very apt scholar, he went to the university. There he was put through a "course of sprouts" by the other students calculated to take the diffidence and bashfulness out of him.

It did. Shortly after leaving the University of Illinois he became associated with a gang of "second story" experts. He was the cleverest of the lot and in most cases their leader in criminal exploits. He was called the "poet" of the nefarious aggregation. He looked like a clergyman, and had a gift of eloquence that astonished many a pleader.

It is characteristic of Rice that he is the only one of the gang that ever attempted diplomacy. Cornered he never offered to kill, but, preferring soft words, secured for himself the best of treatment in an extremity.

Frank Stewart, alias Gannon, well known as a Chicago thief, was the first of the quartette to die. He was killed in an attempt to escape after a Chicago west side robbery. Jones was the next to pay the price. Rutledge committed suicide by hanging himself from the gallery of the Toronto jail to the stone-paved court forty feet below.

They robbed a bank in Aurora, Ont. They were arrested in Chicago, taken back and tried. They got twenty-one years.

While being taken back to the jail in a carriage in charge of constables Stewart and Boyd a well-dressed man sprang from the sidewalk near the jail and ran alongside the carriage. He gained the open window and tossed in a soft felt hat. This fell in the lap of Rutledge. Jones grabbed it and shook out three loaded revolvers.

He grabbed one and Rice and Rutledge took the other two. All three were handcuffed together, but this did not prevent quick action on their part. Jones shot Constable Boyd dead. Constable Stewart was fired on a dozen times but not hit. The prisoners got out of the carriage, gained the street and jumped aboard a passing trolley car.

Jones thrust his revolver at the head of the motorman and ordered him to send the car ahead fast. The motorman refused, shut off the current, detached his controller and beat Jones on the head with it. Constable Stewart had by this time gained the rear end of the car, and he shot Jones through the arm. Other officers came running and the three men were re-captured. Jones was taken to a hospital and his arm amputated. He died from the shock and the loss of blood, and without an expressed regret for his career.

Rice's influence over the fair sex was somewhat phenomenal. While he might not have had, like the Jack Tar of old, "a wife in every port," he had admirers among the fair ones wherever he happened to be. After Judge Kohl-satt, of Chicago, had ordered the transfer of Rice and his companions to the custody of the Canadian police, they were taken to Harrison street police station for temporary security.

When they were brought out to the patrol wagon two women were waiting closely by and the police caused their arrest under the impression that they were looking for an opportunity to convey weapons to the prisoners. However the men were safely taken out of Chicago to Toronto, where two of them now lie dead.

A few days ago Mrs. Rice wrote to her son telling him that her only hope was that if he had to die, he may be prepared. This letter, it was stated, changed the whole demeanor of the prisoner, and caused him to think seriously of what was before him. He now reads his Bible constantly, and has had several talks with Rev. Robert Hall, his spiritual adviser. Rice has read during the past week Parson's "Life of Christ," John Wesley's sermons, and several books on the "Immortality of the Soul." During his sojourn at the jail the condemned man has also read Victor Hugo's great work, "Les Misérables." Recently he declared to one of his guards that he wanted to live solely for his mother.

EVERETT, Mass., July 17.—The discovery of two new cases of smallpox, making a total of nine within a week, in this city, has thoroughly aroused the board of health. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

CHILDREN AND HORSES.

To the Editor of the Star:

Sir,—Is it not time that steps were taken to prevent grocers and others from employing mere children to drive their delivery wagons?

If anyone will take the trouble to notice, I think they will be quite surprised to find how very few of the drivers of delivery wagons are men or even good-sized boys—the majority are simply kids.

Many of the youngsters know little if anything about a horse, other than that it is a good thing to abuse, and not one day passes without numbers of good and willing brutes being unnecessarily and undeservedly tortured by drivers who, in many cases, are probably too young to know any better.

The agent of the S. P. C. A. might well devote a few days to the study of child-labor as applied to delivery teams. If there is a law regulating the ages of drivers of horses it should be enforced, and if there is not one steps should at once be taken to procure the necessary legislation.

Not only would the carrying out of these suggestions cause our noble and faithful friend the horse to be treated more as he should be, but it would also guard against the chances of run-aways (which are now not at all uncommon) and make it more unlikely that some of our citizens would require the services of a doctor and the application of plaster boxes and splints.

Yours truly,

July 17, 1902. EQUITY.

FELL THROUGH THE ROOF.

In the civic court yesterday a rather interesting case involving an action for damages was heard. The plaintiff was Homer Cruikshank and the defendant John Clark. Mr. Cruikshank's conservatory is built on the slope of a hill, and from the top of the hill the approach to the conservatory is somewhat dangerous. A while ago Mr. Clark, who is a teamster, was hauling a load of coal to the conservatory, and while driving down the hill the horse lost control of itself, and along with the cart fell through the glass roof of the hot house. The animal was injured and the cart was also put out of action, but the principal damage was done to the hot house roof and the potted plants which stood on the benches. Mr. Cruikshank sought to recover the value of the property destroyed, through what he claimed was the carelessness of Mr. Clark. He was awarded a verdict of $12.50.
