

TALES OF TERRIBLE SUFFERING COME FROM CAPTURED PRZEMYSL

HUNGRY THROGS IN VIENNA CLAMOR IN VAIN FOR BREAD

At Many Places Violence is Threatened and the Police are Called Out—Lines Form at Bake Shops at Four O'clock in the Morning.

Venice, via London, March 23.—Owing to the action of the Austrian government in reducing by one-fourth the production of bakeries many districts in Vienna are reported to have been virtually without bread for a week. The order curtailing production has been repealed, but the situation is said to have shown no improvement, bakers being unable to obtain flour.

The working classes in the suburbs of Vienna are reported to be feeling the bread shortage greatly. Hundreds of workmen and women and children are declared to have gathered in front of bake shops at four o'clock Thursday morning and within two hours the entire stocks of the bakers were sold. Late comers searched the city and offered double prices for bread but their efforts were without avail. At many places crowds threatened violence and the police were called out. The sight of cakes and tarts in the windows is said to have intensified the wrath of the people, the women declaring that flour was being taken to make delicacies for the wealthy instead of being used to provide bread for the poor.

The authorities are organizing a municipal bureau for the distribution of flour among the Vienna bakers, one-fourth of whom already have closed their shops. The bread question is said to be getting acute also in Budapest, where it is almost impossible to obtain flour. The bakers there have raised a fund to buy wheat flour in Roumania.

The bread situation is declared to be causing apprehension in both kingdoms. Although food prices generally have been raised, thus far there has been no actual shortage in supplies anywhere.

Hungary is said to have a cloth scandal of considerable proportions. Twenty persons have been arrested in connection with it and a number of suspects have fled the country. The swindle is said to have been cleverly carried out. Contractors submitted good materials for uniforms to the war office, which sent them to the clothing factories to be made up. During the transit of the cloth to the factories the swindlers contrived to substitute for it such shoddy goods that the uniforms were in rags in a few days.

One Pressburg contractor received orders to cut cloth in certain lengths for uniforms. It is alleged he cut each length one centimetre short, so that on an order of one million metres he defrauded the war office out of ten thousand metres of cloth.

SERIOUS FIRE IN U. S. TO LIBEL UNION STREET GERMAN SHIPS

Serious loss to a building at 223 Union street, owned in Kingston, Ontario, and controlled here by Messrs. Allison & Thomas, was occasioned by a fire which was discovered about noon yesterday and extinguished about quarter past one. Before it was found the fire had made great headway, and when the firemen responded to an alarm from box 12 they found the interior of the building a mass of flames. The ground floor was occupied by Isaac Webber as a store and auction room and the upper storey was occupied as a residence by Mrs. Ellen Bayes. Mrs. Bayes lost her furniture, valued at about $100, and the entire stock of Mr. Webber's store was destroyed. The building was gutted by the flames and will be practically a total loss. It was two and a half storeys in height and built entirely of wood and owned by J. C. Baker, of Kingston, Ont., and was insured for $2,600. It will be practically a total loss. The origin of the fire was unknown. Only about five minutes before Mr. Webber had left the place, locking the door behind him. When the firemen arrived they broke open the door and found that considerable waste paper and other material was lying about. There had been a fire in a stove in the premises and it is possible that the blaze had its origin there. The flames quickly spread to the upper storey of the building and the occupants were obliged to make a hasty exit. Before the firemen were able to subdue the fire it had practically destroyed the interior of the building. While the neighboring premises sustained slight damage from smoke and water, the principal losses will be Mr. Webber, whose stock is entirely destroyed and only partially insured; Mr. Baker, who owns the building, but is covered by insurance, and Mrs. Bayes, who loses her furniture.

KAISER CANCELS HIS APRIL 1 PROGRAMME

Celebration in Honor of Bismarck Centenary Will be Curtailed.

London, Mar. 23.—Emperor William has decided to cancel the celebrations planned for April 1, to commemorate the centenary of Bismarck's birth, on the ground that present conditions make such a celebration unsuitable. A Berlin despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Amsterdam, adds, asserts that Emperor William and the members of the German government will place wreaths on Bismarck's monument in the Tiergarten in Berlin, but that there will be no banquets, addresses or singing.

A special train will convey them from Brussels to the Dutch frontier.

CHINA MAKES CERTAIN CONCESSIONS TO JAPAN

Peking, Mar. 23.—Five articles bearing on the Japanese demands upon China were initiated as concluded by the Chinese Foreign Minister, Lu Chang-Hsiang, and Eki Hiroki, the Japanese Minister, at the conference which was held at the Japanese legation yesterday. The Japanese minister recently suffered slight injuries by a fall from a horse and his condition did not permit him to go to the Chinese Foreign Office, and for this reason the meeting was transferred to the legation.

All the articles concern Manchuria. China agreed to the following stipulations:

"First—The Japanese government's consent shall be obtained before a loan is made with a third power, involving the pledging of local taxes in South Manchuria.

"Second—The Japanese government's consent shall be obtained whenever permission is granted to a subject of a third power to build a railway, or when a loan is made with a third power for the building of a railway in South Manchuria.

"Third—If the Chinese government in South Manchuria employs advisers or instructors for political, financial or military purposes, the Japanese government shall first be consulted.

"Fourth—The transfer of the Kirin-Chang Chun Railway to Japanese control for 99 years.

The fifth article was proposed by China and provides for the continuance of such treaties as are not affected by the present treaty.

The Japanese have conceded the point of a separate discussion regarding East Mongolia and South Manchuria, which were combined in their list of demands.

Clauses Not Complete.

In the Manchuria group, the immigration and land ownership clauses have not yet been settled, but progress has been made. In the case also with respect to the mining clause, the government has definitely withdrawn what is known as "Article Three of the fifth group," namely, the demand for a joint police administration of "important places," throughout China and has also indicated its willingness, it is announced, to withdraw one or two other articles from this so-called general group.

The Chinese government has received additions confirming the report that 600 additional Japanese troops have arrived at Tsinan, making a total of 2,000.

Boycotts by the Chinese on Japanese goods are reported from several places in the south, where it is considered that the Chinese are most likely to get beyond the government's control. A Shanghai despatch says that rioting occurred within the foreign settlements Monday night, Japanese theatres and shops were stoned. The foreign police were called out and made some arrests.

FIRST NIGHT IN TRENCHES

Former Detective William Miller of the Toronto police force, who is now a sergeant in the 48th Highlanders, tells of experiences in the trenches, and events leading up to them, in the following letter received by Inspector Kennedy today:

"I am wishing to give you a little account of my first twenty-four hours in the trenches, as I make no doubt yourself and the boys will be glad to hear from the front, but first I will tell you of our trip to France. We left Salisbury Plain on Feb. 11, about 2.30 a.m., and took the train for Almsbury, a village about three miles from camp, to where we embarked on the S. S. Mount Temple at noon, our landing place of course is unknown. Guns, horses, wagons, men, everything went together. Non-commissioned officers were allowed the only room up to lie on. Officers had bunks. We fed on bully beef and biscuits you couldn't break with a sledge hammer.

Juggled by the Sea

"We struck a severe storm in the Bay of and could not stand, sit or lie. We were just thrown from one side of the boat to the other. Several men were hurt. The sergeant had his arm broken. Everybody was sick, even the crew.

"However, we arrived at on the morning of Feb. 15th. We remained on deck until six p.m., when we took train and, believe me, it was some joy ride, in small box cars, forty men in each (twenty-five would be overcrowding). Anyway we rode in that manner for forty-eight hours, about practically one end of France to the other. (Still holding hard to our biscuits and bully). We arrived at a small town called Hazlebrook and put up at a church which was still under course of construction, without roof or windows, and remained there until morning, when we marched five miles farther to a village named where we were supposed to be put up or billeted as they call it.

"There was not enough room in the school selected for the whole battalion, so one company (including myself) had to go into a barn in the vicinity. It was very cold at night, the rats were almost playing hide and seek in our hair. We remained there for four days and on the 23rd got orders to get ready in heavy marching order, receiving 150 rounds of ammunition. Our full kit weighed roughly 60 pounds.

Over Cobble Stones.

"We started and walked over a cobble stone for sixteen miles until we arrived at the city of Just on the border between France and Belgium and about one mile from the trenches. The place has 28,000 population, and as we walked through we could see whole streets with nearly every house roofless, and a terrible amount of poverty. The hard biscuit which we got so tired of eating, seemed to the throng of children that followed us, to be the first bit they had had in days.

"On the night of our arrival at we did not go into the trenches. I suppose the authorities thought the sixteen miles over rough roads was enough for one day. We got into school. The roof and walls had already been blown to pieces by the shells. We remained there until the following night (February 24th), when the one half of the battalion went into the trenches. I happened to be detailed with the second half and went to the trenches the following night. We divided our men with the Westminster and Derby regiments "section about." It was a lovely night, the moon shining brightly. I thought it was an ideal night, but soon found out it was the worst kind, we could have had, as the enemy's trenches were only about three hundred yards from ours, and it is the going in and out of the trenches that many men are lost?

In the Trenches.

"We got into the trenches alright, although the bullets were whistling around our ears quite thick. The trench is about five feet six inches deep, and about three feet wide, except at the sentry posts, where it is wider. Two men per section are placed on sentry, remaining there two hours and are relieved accordingly. There are dug outs underneath the trench where one can crawl in and lie down when not on watch, but the Germans do not give much peace. As a rule our men do not keep firing unless they see something to fire at, but the Germans keep blazing away. They get our range in the day time, and blow our sand bags to pieces as fast as we can build them up. In the vicinity of the trenches there are some trees, broken down houses, farms, etc. The enemy have sharp shooters concealed there. Snipers they call them, and you bet they can shoot. A great number of our men lose their lives by being too curious and sticking their heads out. The snipers get them in about ten seconds.

The Casualties.

"During my first twenty-four hours in the trenches, we were fairly fortunate. We had one man killed and two wounded in the 48th and four wounded and one killed in the Westminster. Several others had narrow escapes. In the early morning there was quite a heavy fog, and a number of us got out to fix up some barb wire that had been shot to pieces during the night. We were busy working when the fog lifted very suddenly, and you bet we got into the trenches none too soon. We have had twenty-four hours in and out at present, but expect to be in for a week or two later on.

"This is the life alright, but believe me, Toronto will look good to me any old time now."
