

Fear of everything human

Want to hear what life would be like during a war in the U.S. today? Afraid you might die in the war, after all war ain't no disco, ain't no party, ain't no foolin' around. You may go to Heaven. Did you know that "heaven is a place where nothing ever happens"? These images, situations, are created in your mind as you listen to Fear of Music, the Talking Heads new L.P. on Sire. F.O.M. is the second Heads album with Brian Eno.

Although the band is relatively new to the average person, the Talking Heads are part of everyone. David Byrne's lyrics move in dangerous rhythms, they make your eyes see Animals laughing at you, almost as if you were on Drugs. Byrne is possessed, he's strange, constantly worried about setting a bad example.

The meeting of life is poignantly portrayed in a crime against the state. That is to say that the state brings Electric Guitar in for questioning, the jury listens to records. Verdict: "Never Listen to Electric Guitar". Therefore denial, pain and suffering are the meaning of life, after all as we have been told before, "it is impossible to achieve the aim without suffering." David Byrne has obviously had his share of suffering, it is reflected in his lyrics.

F.O.M. is a very good piece of spiral scratch. It is new. Because it is new, it is worth listening to. More important however is that F.O.M. is not unlike More Songs About Buildings And Food or Talking Heads '77, in that their entire concept hovers around social analysis and observation of primitive beings. David Byrne is not afraid of music, he's afraid of everything human. Next, a lil' ol' dance band from Georgia.

"I used to think banks robbed employees of their individuality and gave it back when they retired."

Tony Busbridge,
Honours Business Administration
Wilfrid Laurier University, 1973

"When it came to picking a career, banking was the last thing on my mind. The reason was, I pictured myself disappearing into the woodwork and surfacing 40 years later with a gold watch, a slap on the back and one of those 'good old boy' retirement parties.

"Brother, was I wrong.

"Before graduating from Laurier, I talked with one of Toronto Dominion's campus recruiters. He stressed the personality of the bank and its people. Plus the fact that I wouldn't get lost in the shuffle—and I could make my own opportunities if I worked hard at it.

"He talked a lot about TD's management opportunities, too. He explained that they were into everything from market research to international banking.

"I was impressed. And so I decided to give TD a chance.

"I started in their Banklab Training Course and it gave me some important insights into management. Then I did some work in research and development, followed by commercial credit training. Now I'm an Assistant Manager of commercial credit—a good job with a lot of responsibility.

"Today, things are moving along just fine. The future looks bright and prosperous. And Tony Busbridge is getting ahead in the world."

The bank where people make the difference

Look for TD recruiters on your campus soon.