BORDEN CAMP AGAIN PRAISED BY LIB. EDITOR

"A Mighty Good Camp in Which to Train Soldiers," He says on Second Visit

From the Simcoe Reformer, Sept. 7.

"The editor of The Reformer was in Borden last week-end. He went there by motor in the hospitable car of Mr. Robert L. Innes, of Hamilton. Comment as to the pleasant details of the trip is unnecessary. Everything was delightful. The roads were good, the weather pleasant, the car comfortable, the chauffeur dependable, the stopping places to be treasured in one's memory. But it is not of the trip we wish to speak. The last time ventured to express an opinion of Camp Borden we called down on our devoted head two different brands of trouble. First there was the editor of the Government organ who desired to bring into court every possible witness who would say even one good word for the camp. And after all, the editor of The Reformer is a Liberal, and dislikes being called as a witness for the other side. Opposed to this gentleman but quite as unscrupulous in the use he makes of another man's views, we discovered that we had deeply grieved a lot of partizan Grits who don't give a hang what happens, so long as they win a party victory. For two years or more the editor of The Reformer has regarded a Grit victory as of secondary importance. There is just one thing that we all ought to be doing, and that is helping to whip the Germans. It was in this frame of mind we went up to Borden in July, looked it over pretty thoroughly and decided that on the whole it was a mighty good camp in which to train soldiers. A second visit only confirms that opinion. Those Liberal friends who object to our making this concession will have to take it or let it alone. In arguing that Borden is a well-equipped and commodious training ground we are admitting only what a man not blinded by partizanship or spite must admit, if he is honest. But it does not follow that there cannot have been tremendous waste in its construction, and disreputable scandals in its original purchase. Possibly a strong case can be made out for the contention that there were plenty of camps without it. But can't these questions abide? Why hearten the Germans by telling the world that we cannot, in the conduct of public affairs, be even reasonably honest? Let's wash our dirty linen after we have won out to victory. It will best serve the interests of the Liberals if they loyally play the game to the end. We have nothing to lose by waiting. We have everything to lose by taking our dishes and going home. A khaki election is out of the question. Let us do our simple, plain duty to the very end as loyal British subjects, and trust implicity in the future being very kind to a party that so conducts itself. Liberals in Norfolk who have been filled with dope against Camp Borden are advised to visit it. It is only 115 miles distant from Simcoe, through a country of varied beauties. Your friends in the 133rd will give you a hearty welcome, and we will wager you will get some eye-opening impressions."

The editor of The Reformer is Mr. Hal. Donley, the best-known Liberal in Norfolk and widely known in Western Ontario.

SALMON A SCARCITY

Shortage of Million Cases This Year

First official figures of the pack of Alaska salmon for the season of 1916 are given out by the Kelley-Clarke Company, Seattle, showing a shortage of at least 1,000,000 cases of pinks as compared with the 1915 pack, while a big shrinkage in the output of Alaska red salmon and Puget Sound and British Columbia sockeyes also is recorded.

The total pack of sockeye salmon canned in British Columbia is given at 200,000 cases for 1916, as against an average pack of 660,000 in the past three previous years. Alaska red salmon is the only brand which England takes as a substitute for sockeye, of which 1,000,000 cases were exported last year. There is practically no carry-over in this pack.

Pink sold early in the season last year at 65 cents the dozen, opening this year in San Francisco at 90 cents and in Seattle at $1. Opening prices of Alaska red salmon a year ago was $1.50 per dozen. This year the opening figure in San Francisco is $1.50, in Seattle, $1.60 the dozen.

The strength of Alaska reds is indicated by the fact that the pack and carryover in packers' hands is about the same as last year. Stocks in hands of jobbers and retailers are much less. Of last year's supply 7,200,000 cases were used in domestic market, 1,000,000 cases were exported.

This year not a case of sockeye tails was packed on the Fraser River or on Puget Sound. The total pack of sockeyes in British Columbia was 200,000 cases against an average of 660,000 cases in the previous three years. Last year there was a carryover of 200,000 cases of sockeyes on Puget Sound, all exported to England. There is no carryover this year.

In the case of pinks, the shortage is even more apparent. Total pack of Alaska pinks will not exceed 1,600,000 cases. Last year's exports of this grade were 1,425,000 cases. The 1916 pack of pinks is at least 1,000,000 cases short of last year.
